BITTER FIGHT IN TREATY DEBATE

Shark Shoes

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—By wearing shoes made of shark skin, Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield has become one of the first patrons of a new industry which his department of the government, through it's bureau of fisheries, has been boasting for several years, and which now promises to become successful and important.

Whether the high price of shoes is due primarily to profiteering, or to the scarcity of leather, there is no doubt that leather has become scarce. Hides are a by-product of beef, and we do not eat as much beef as we used to eat, because we cannot afford it. Hence there are no longer enough cow hides to go around. We are already wearing a good many rubber shoes and composition shoes, and we have imitation leather goods galore. Most of these articles are not as satisfactory as genuine leather goods.

But this objection does not hold against shark shoes. Shark leather wears well and takes on a high finish. And the sea is full of sharks, which have no recognizable function in life other than to bite a leg off of a surf bather now and then. The supply of sharks and other fish with valuable skins seems inexhaustible. The only things remaining to be done are to put the catching of sharks, and the tanning of their hides on a sound commercial basis, and this is already rapidly being accomplished by several companies, ably aided by the Bureau of Fisheries.

Shoes Aren't All

Not only shark shoes, but several other articles made of shark and other fish skins have been on exhibition at the bureau of fisheries for several years. Catfish suit cases, porpoise music rolls, codfish pocket books and wolf-fish razor strops have already been manufactured, and will probably appear in the department stores before long.

Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, of the bureau of fisheries, is in charge of the work of promoting the use of fish skins, and he has several assistants. He reports that two companies are already in the business of producing fish hide articles. One of these is operating several experimental plants, and the other has recently purchased sites on the coast where it intends to build tanneries close to the source of supply. Several other concerns are making preliminary experiments.

Dr. Radcliffe reports that each new batch of tanned fish skins produced by these pioneers in the industry shows marked progress in the art of tanning sea leather. They are now producing ocean leather that is strong, flexible and will take a high finish.

Commercial Use Is New.

Fish skins have been tanned and manufactured for some years as novelties, but their use as leather on a commercial scale is entirely new. The only commercial use of shark skins heretofore has been to dry them and use them in the rough state for polishing wood and ivory, somewhat like sand paper. It took a shortage of leather to make the experts see that the fish skins could be put to a much better use.

Shark skin shoes have one great advantage in going before the public in that they lend themselves easily to advertising. The very name has an alliterative quality which is calculated to catch the popular ear. "Shark skin shoes stay shined," for example, is a fine advertising phrase. And all sorts of marine lore can be worked into the advertising and strikingly illustrated.

This is a more important consideration than it might seem at first glance. Shark skin shoes may skin every other kind of shoe for cheapness, durability

...ER DEFENDS REQUEST FOR 18,000 ARMY OFFICERS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 27.—Conditions of which the public has no knowledge make it important that a thorough state of efficiency in the American army be reached with as little delay as possible, Secretary Baker declared in a letter today to Chairman Kahn of the house military affairs committee, which went exhaustively into the reason why he asked congress for autority to retain a maximum of 18,000 commanding officers in the military establishment up to June 30, 1920.

Pointing out that the two major tasks now facing the war department are the complete rebuilding of a "permanent military force" and the liquidation of property valued at six and a half billion dollars, Secretary Baker ... authority to retain a maximum of 18,000 officers was requested in order that line officers might be free to devote their entire energy to army reorganization.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Washington, Aug. 27.—The cool wave extending over the country east of the Mississippi river and which is almost unprecedented for this time of the year, probably will continue for a day or two, it was said today at the weather bureau. It results from high pressure over the plains states.

Richmond, Virgina, reported a minimum temperature of 54 degrees today, one degree below the previous low record for August in that city.

LENROOT OFFERS NEW RAIL PLAN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 27.—Unionization of railroads of the United States into one system with minimum earnings guaranteed, the management shared by the security holders, public and employes and with provision for sharing excess profits between the public and employes, is proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin. The plan differs radically from the Plumb plan.

The bill was drawn by the Citizens National Railroad League in collaboration with Senator Lenroot.

Under the proposed plan the railroads of the county would be placed under the private ownership and operation of one corporation, the management of which, however, would be under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission, but conducted directly by a board of 11 directors appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate, consisting of two employes, two representing the United States chamber of commerce, two farmers, three security holders and one each from the interstate commerce commission and the state railway commissions.

ANTI-LIQUOR DRIVE TO BE EXTENDED TO BREWERY OFFICIALS

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Chicago, Aug. 27.—More arrests, including officials of several large breweries, are booked for today in the drive of U. S. District Attorney Clyne on the liquor interests which, he charges, is thriving here despite the wartime prohibition laws. In the meantime the liquor interests have laid plans to fight the efforts of the U. S. District Attorney to stop the traffic.

They began their battle with a petition for an injunction asking that Zion City officials be restrained from interfering with the removal of 19 trucks which were held there en route from Milwaukee with cargoes of beer.

SPARTACANS REFUSE TO "SLAVE" FOR ALLIES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Berlin, Monday, Aug. 25.—A circular letter from the leaders of the Spartacus party has fallen into the hands of the league for the protection of German kultur. It says the party opposes the clause in the peace treaty relative to labor by German workmen in the rehabilation of devastated districts in France and Belgium, saying the pact was "signed by bourgeois with bourgeois, which the party does not recognize." The letter states that the Spartacan organization will not send its laborers to France and declares the manner of transporting workers, their separation from their families and their quarters in barracks is reminiscent of bodily slavery.

"The picture," the letter continues, "is made prettier by negotiations between the Germans and French as to the part German industry will play in the work of reconstruction. Labor by the proletariat is the price with which the bourgeoisie purchases the continued existence of the fatherland, whereas the sense of the revolution was to cease the performance of bloody slave service for this fatherland. The German proletariat will not perform this service in some other form."

Soldier Vocational Educational Board Denies Inefficiency

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 27.—The federal board of vocational education, through its director, Dr. Charles A. Prosser, has addressed a letter to members of congress denying charges recently made by the association of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines of inefficiency in the board's administration.

Replying to the association's charge that hundreds of men have been compelled to depend upon the charity of friends for months after applying for vocational training because of the board's delay in arranging the payment of compensation, Dr. Prosser declared that the board had not authority to make such payments or place the men in training until compensation for disability is awarded by the bureau of war risk insurance.

School Named After Capt. Miles' Daughter

Mary Miles is the name which the people of district No. 1 Fulton, have given to their school. Under the new school law every rural school in the state must be given a name.

The name, Mary Miles, was chosen because in 1851 Captain Miles donated the land for the purpose of a school with the reservation that if the land should at some time later cease to be used for school purposes, it should revert to the estate of his daughter Mary Miles.

GARY DISCLOSES LETTER FROM LABOR ON TRADE UNIONS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 27.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, made public today a communication sent by him to a committee of the American Federation of Labor which is organizing workers in the iron and steel industry, asserting that his corporation would decline to discuss business relations with trade unions as such.

Mr. Gary's letter was addressed to John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the committee, and his assistants, in reply to a request for an interview to discuss hours of labor, working conditions and union recognition. It said:

"We do not think you are authorized to represent the sentiment of a majority of the employes of the United States Steel corporation and its subsidiaries. We express no opinion concerning any other members of the iron and steel industry.

"Our corporation and subsidiaries, although they do not combat labor unions as such, decline to discuss business with them. The corporation and subsidiaries are opposed to the closed shop. They stand for the open shop, which permits one to engage in any line of employment whether one does or does not belong to a labor union. We decline to discuss with you any matter relating to employes."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The subject has been under discussion in the supreme council, in which, it is reported, there was sharp criticism of American interference in Turkey through missions and otherwise, despite the fact that the United States has shown no disposition to accept a mandate for the administration of any Turkish territory.

Tomorrow the committee will resume its open hearings beginning a schedule which is expected to preclude any consideration of amendments before the end of next week.

Sen. Fall Replies To McCumber

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 27.—Senator Fall, republican, New Mexico, replying in the senate today to an address yesterday by Senator McCumber, republican North Dakota, criticising the foreign relations committee for amending the Shantung procisions of the peace treaty, said senators who had not read the treaty and did not know its contents were the most insistent that it be ratified immediately.

Soon after he began speaking, Senator Fall was interrupted by Senator Nelson, republican, of Minnesota, who asked what he proposed to do with the treaty.

"There is no use attempting to chop this treaty into mincemeat," declared the Minnesota senator. "If that is the senator's object, he will find that mincemeat would be wiped aside by the senate."

Fall Refuses Discussion

Senator Fall said he would not enter into a discussion with Senator Nelson in deference to the latter's age, whereupon Senator Nelson rejoined:

"You need'nt consider my age, but just consider me the youngest man in the senate. I am neither in my second childhood in this matter nor in the Mexican matter."

Later interruptions of Senator Fall's speech by Senator McCumber led to one of the bitterest exchanges since the treaty debate began. Facing each other at a distance of a few feet, the two senators raised their voices and pounded their desks to emphasize their declarations.

When Senator Fall said that Senator McCumber had deferred on the grounds of justice the award to Japan of "goods stolen by Germany from China," Mr. McCumber sprang to his feet and shouted:

McCumber Rises Up

"I deny that statement in toto as being absolutely and unqualifiedly false. I have never taken the ground that the act of Germany was fair and moral."

"You did defend the Shantung provisions," retorted Senator Fall, "and claimed that Japan had the right to take Shantung."

"And she derived that right under a solemn pledge to return it, but you leave that out of your statement," rejoined Senator McCumber.

Senator McCumber said that as Senator Fall was prescribing for the conduct of senators, he should take some of his own medicine, adding "and you will take it before you are through."

DR. REINSCH TO GIVE UP CHINA POST

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japanese dispatches to Honolulu that Dr. Reinsch's resignation had been offered "suddenly" were denied, it being explained that the resignation had been in the president's hands for some time. No action on it has yet been taken however.

Dr. Reinsch was appointed minister to China in 1913 when William J. Bryan was secretary of state. He at that time was professor of political economy at the University of Wisconsin.

KING FERDINAND FLED AT ORDER OF EMPEROR CHARLES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Paris, Aug. 26.—When the former King Ferdinand fled from Bulgaria and took refuge in one of his castles in Austria, he had to leave by order of Emperor Charles, according to the Journal des Debats, which says it received its information from an authorized source.

Count Leopold von Berchtold, (former Austrian foreign minister and a close friend of Emperor Charles) came to deliver the order, arriving at the castle at midnight, the newspaper continues, the abdicated monarch was found asleep, but when the count entered his bedroom, thrust his head from the bed clothes and seated himself on the bed. His nightgown was of mauve and heavily embroidered. He wore gold bracelets on his arm and rings with rubies and other precious stones on every finger.

Calls

When he understood what was wanted, he cried: "It is infamy-treachery."

Affirming that he had always sacrificed himself for Austria, he sent for his son, Prince Cyrille, to testify to his noble sentiments. When the prince arrived Ferdinand cried; "Kiki, swear that your father was never a traitor." The son, hardly awake, failed to grasp the situation and remained silent, whereupon his father burst out:

"Get out, you're only an idiot, Kiki, you understand nothing. Send for my faithful general."

This general proved to be a Bulgarian who spoke only his native language. A triangular conversation followed, the former king translating Count von Berchtold's german into Bulgarian and the general Bulgarian into German.

Despite Ferdinand's plea that "now you have a witness that I never was a traitor" Count von Berchtold reiterated the order, making Ferdinand understand that his life was in danger if he remained. This argument convinced the former monarch and within a few minutes an automobile carried off into the darkness Ferdinand, Kiki, the general and the millions Ferdinand had succeeded in bringing with him.

"The purpose is to bring home to the public the facilities afforded by the treasury department for small savings by the puchase of war savings and thrift stamps which will draw compound interest. Any one person may own not to exceed $1000 worth of savings stamps. The limitation is intended to keep the stamps out of the hands of men and women of large means, and to afford an opportunity for men, women and children of small means to own government securities drawing interest.

SHARK SKIN SHOES IS NEW MEANS OF BEATING HIGH PRICES

and beauty, but until you have driven that fact through the head of the average man, it is of no effect in reducing the high cost of living. Shark skin shoes must be fashionable, as well as durable, to make headway in this country where everybody follows the crowd.

Seas Full of Sharks

The supply and variety of material that this new industry will have to draw upon is something stupendous. Sharks occur in almost all the seas of the world, and there is more sea in the world than land. They range in size from the little dog fish, not much over a foot long, to the big gray sharks 18 to 20 feet long. Despite the fact that the sharks succeeded in terrorizing surf-bathers along the Jersey coast a couple of years ago, there are but few well-authenticated instances of sharks attacking human beings. But they do kill enormous numbers of food fish. There will thus be a double gain in reducing the numbers of the sharks.

The supply of ocean leather would seem to be inexhaustible, but experience shows that man will exterminate almost anything, once he begins to prey upon it, unless it is rigorously protected. Whales are also found in almost all the seas of the world, and to the whalers of a hundred years ago it would have seemed absurd to say that whales could ever become scarce. Yet the more valuable species of whale are all but extinct. It is probable that statesmen of the future will be drafting laws to save the shark from a like fate.

Created by Government

This new industry is perhaps the only one, outside of a few war-born businesses that has been created almost wholly by the government. The bureau of fisheries had first to induce the fishermen to catch sharks, and then persuade tanners to offer a market for them. The bureau began by collecting several hundred hides of shark, cod, hake, grouper, gar, ray, catfish, and wolf-fish, and distributing them among tanners, asking that they be tanned experimentally. Then the finished hides were returned to the bureau, where they were scientifically tested, and their remarkable strength proved.

The bureau has also developed a type of net suitable for catching sharks, and special devices for skinning fish. It has made preparations to establish experimentally ideal fishing plants along the coast, where the flesh of sharks and other fish, not usually eaten now, will be canned for food, the liver oil extracted and marketed, the hides tanned for leather and the refuse sold as fertilizer.

The war inevitably retarded the development of this industry. There was not enough labor, nor enough transportation, and no one cared to devote time and money to experiments. But now the ocean leather business is undoubtedly in for a boom.

MERCHANTS READY FOR DOLLAR DAY

Merchants made final arrangements today for the semi-annual dollar day sale in Janesville all day tomorrow. Expecting one of the largest crowds in Dollar Day history the bargains were plainly marked today and placed on open counters ready for the sale.

MERCHANTS SELL SUGAR CAUTIOUSLY

Local grocery merchants are feeling the effects of the sugar shortage in that they are forced to limit their customers in the amount of sugar which they may purchase.

There is no official ban on sugar at the present time, one dealer stated this morning. Merchants have been unable to get the sugar when they order from the wholesale houses. All of them have but small supplies on hand and in selling large amounts to customers are running the chance of being out the product the next day.

Eleven cents is the set price a pound for sugar. Most of the merchants are limiting their city customers to 25 cents worth at a time and their country customers to 50 cents worth. In a few cases dealers have been unable to allow their customers the extra amount for canning.

All of the merchants have stated that while they have the sugar on hand, they will give to each customer what he needs for use.

One dealer stated that he had heard of a few instances of housewives going from one store to another purchasing at each store, and then hoarding the product.

Big shipment jewelry just arrived. See them. Woolworth's.

ARMY BLANKET SALE IN P. O. DELAYED

Army blankets will not be placed on sale at the local post office for some time, according to Postmaster J. J. Cunningham. He received a letter this morning from the zone supply officer, Chicago, ordering the discontinuance of the sale of army blankets at post offices. As none had been received here, this order was not effective. The allotment of the two Chicago stores, which had them on sale, quickly became exhausted.

It is said the object of the discontinuance order is to give the people of the smaller towns opportunity to buy blankets as they did surplus foodstuffs.

The letter stated that Postmaster Cunningham will be notified when the sale is to be continued.

GRAIN

Chicago Review

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Scattered commission house buying and light offerings today failed at the start to offset a general bearishness among corn traders. Conditions of industrial and economic unrest seemed reflected in the tendency to keep away from high prices. Increased buying early induced a slight upturn which was speedily followed by another sag. Opening corn prices were ⅜c higher to 1⅛ cents lower, December showing the only increase. The initial figures were, Sept. 1.78 @ 1.78⅛ and December 1.41½ @ 1.42.

Later corn prices averaged lower local traders selling freely. Several times indications were apparent that the market had been oversold. Covering at these points brought about rallies but selling pressure returned and prices fell off. The close was weak ⅝ to 1 cent net lower with September 1.78⅜ to 1.79 and December 1.40⅝ to 1.40¾.

Oats started weak with limited support and through the early trading moved in narrower limits than corn. The market steadied somewhat beneath the opening figures. Opening prices were unchanged to ⅜ cents lower with September at 71⅝ to 71⅞ and December 74⅜ to 74⅝.

Provisions opened dull and weak, influenced by declines in live hog prices. At the start prices were from 25 cents to 40 cents lower.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review

New York, Aug. 27.—An early rally on today's stock market session was succeeded by a reaction which carried prices for the most part under initial declines. Towards midday the market hardened again on buying of equipments and specialties, notably American Car and United States Rubber, but United States Steel and shippings were under continuance pressure with standard rails. Call money opened at six per cent.

Montana power declined eight points on news of the reduced dividend. Chandler motors was also heavy but equipments held their ground.

Moderate selling attributed to rejection by the railroad shopmen of President Wilson's offer imparted a heavy tone to the stock market at the opening today. Losses of 1 to almost 2 points were made by leading rails, steels, equipments, coppers, motors and their specialties, and oils. Losses were largely recovered before the end of the first hour on renewed demand for Crucible Steel, Baldwin Locomotive and several of yesterday's strong issues.

Reactions of 1 to 3 points occurred in the last hour, the reversal accompanying the announcement of Judge Gary's refusal to treat with the Union delegation. The close was heavy.

ORFORDVILLE VOTES FOR UNOIN HIGH SCHOOL

(By Special Correspondent.)

Orfordville, Aug. 27.—Orfordville is to have a union high school. By a narrow margin at the election Tuesday the question was decided.

A large vote was not cast and more than half of those who signed the petition in the rural districts failed to cast a ballot. While the opposition made a strong effort, the result of the vote in the outlying districts was 68 for and 66 against. In the village the vote cast was 113 for and 14 against.

The following officers were elected: Richard Egan, Orfordville, clerk; Mrs. Warren Bowles, Spring Valley, director; and Gilbert Knudson, Plymouth, treasurer.

Completion of the work which will get the school in readiness for use this fall will be pushed with vigor. It is hoped by those in charge of the work that the first year of the union high school will begin in a few weeks.

Latest Wright Novel is Reformation Study

"The Re-Creation of Brian Kent," the latest novel by Harold Bell Wright to appear on the reading market, is a close assemblage of love and hate, good and bad motives. In the slow descriptive style, characteristic of Wright, the writer portrays his four outstanding characters with a vivid realism. The simplicity and womanliness of Auntie Sue, the modern girlism of Betty Jo, the mountaineering attitude of Judy, the zeal for lust of Mrs. Kent are all brought out in detail as the reformation of the thief and drunkard, Brian Kent, is worked to its successful conclusion.

Price of Eggs Spoils This Sporting Event

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Cleveland, Ohio—"Eggs is eggs" these days.

This fact intervened and caused failure of the feature sporting event of the Rotarian's annual picnic—the women's egg race.

The impediment—the egg—was too much of an impediment, financially speaking. The skirted contestants simply refused to take any risks with their precious freight, so they walked the length of the course.

"I do not know what the prize is worth, but I do know what an egg costs," one explained.

Tractor Demonstration

doing real work on kerosene, and the famous E-B Self-Lift Tractor Plow with the patented E-B Quick Detachable Shares.

This demonstration will be worth coming miles to see. Your neighbors are coming, so be sure and be there.

TO GIVE TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION

A. A. Russell & Co. announce that on Wednesday and Thursday, August 27th and 28th, there will be a free demonstration of the E-B 12-20 (S. A. E. Rating) Model AA kerosene tractor at The Taylor Farm, 3½ miles east on Milton avenue.

This demonstration will be valuable to the up-to-date farmers of this locality. It will give them an opportunity to see what one of the most popular makes of tractors can do. The entire demonstration will be under just such conditions as a tractor has to meet on the farm.

Unlike an automobile the tractor must not only propel itself but must also have sufficient power left to do a reasonable amount of work. The amount of surplus power is dependent on two things—the weight of the tractor and the friction drag. Any extra weight over what is necessary for strength saps the tractor's power and makes climbing grades more difficult and tends to mire the tractor in soft ground.

The E-B 12-20 (S. A. E. Rating) Model AA kerosene tractor is a light weight tractor and its rating is only 80 per cent of its power. The Emerson-Brantingham Company are the first tractor manufacturers to adopt the rating of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

The E-B Company being pioneers in the tractor field are not manufacturing and selling an experimental tractor but a tractor that has known qualities. They are the originators of the four-cylinder kerosene tractor motor—the first to adopt heavy duty roller bearings—a multiple transmission running in an oil bath and a high tension magneto system.

The E-B 12-20 Model AA kerosene tractor is used extensively on the big farms of the West and the smaller farms of the Middle West and East. It is a thoroughly practical machine.

Do not miss seeing this demonstration.

JOFFRE AND VERDUN.

Why was General Joffre relieved as generalissimo of the French armies rather early in the war? We have had a general idea that he was regarded as not sufficiently aggressive; that his policy of "nibbling" the enemy was considered unpromising. Now that stories of inner workings are coming out, we are learning the reasons for Joffre's retirement, as we shall hear explanations of many other things not hitherto clearly understood.

Walter Duranty, writing from Paris to the New York Times, gives us the benefit of considerable new light on the valiant defense of Verdun. The Germans under the crown prince began their assaults in February, 1916, and the struggle continued four months, at a cost of over 600,000 casualties to the enemy, and about 400,000 to the French.

The startling feature of the new revelations is that the defenses of Verdun were practically worthless. The forts had been dismantled of artillery, there was no closely knit trench system, and there were not enough barbed wire entanglements and other defensive works to offer real obstacles to the Germans. Verdun was saved by the sheer valor of desperately courageous men led by an able commander, Petain.

In the summer and fall of 1915, attention was called to the weakness of Verdun. General Gallieni, minister of war, asked General Joffre to strengthen the works. In a long and polite rejoinder, Joffre invited Gallieni to mind his own business, assuring him that he, Joffre, would see to the defensive works of Verdun.

Gallieni sought to have Joffre removed, but Premier Briand, more intent on keeping his own regime in office than anything else, blocked him. A few months later, after so many gallant Frenchmen had paid with their lives for the neglect at Verdun, Briand's cabinet fell, and General Joffre was replaced.

The war was hard on men's reputations and the revelations of peace will bring new tribulations to men who tried hard and faithfully, but who were not fully equal to the terrific test. Joffre, the savior of civilization at the Marne, still stands a heroic figure in spite of human limitations, because we all know what it is to stumble when we are sorely pressed.

JULY TRADE FIGURES.

Imports in July were the largest in the history of the country, while the exports were the lowest in any month of this year, according to a statement given out by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, of the department of commerce.

The July exports amounted to $570,000,000, nearly $350,000,000 less than in June, the high record month, but an increase over the $507,000,000 exports in July, 1918. For the seven months ended with July the exports were $4,618,000,000 in 1919, and $3,482,000,000 in 1918, an increase of nearly 33 percent in one year.

July imports were valued $845,000,000 as against $293,000,000 in June, 1919, and $242,000,000 in July, 1918. They are the largest monthly imports in the history of our foreign trade, exceeding by $16,000,000 the previous high record in May of this year. Imports for the seven months ended with July were $1,955,000,000 in 1919, against $1,783,000,000 in 1918, an increase in the last year of less than 10 percent.

The excess of exports over imports was $225,000,000 in July, and $2,863,000,000 in the seven months of this year, $969,000,000 more than the excess in the seven months period of 1918 of $1,694,000,000 an increase of 67 percent.

THE PATH CLEARED.

Attorney General Blaine has announced that the soldiers' bonus bill is valid and thus the last obstacle in the way of the people sanctioning the measure is removed. This question was raised by Governor Philipp in a recent address at Fort Atkinson. The opinion of the attorney general removes all doubt as to the constitutionality. He bases it upon a supreme court decision handed down several years ago by Judge Dixon.

The Janesville Chamber of Commerce has, through its board of directors, informed the service men that they stand ready to back their pledges made during the war, by helping them carry the referendum.

The Italian battleship crew which is booked to cruise along the Atlantic coast is facing a serious situation. While on their visit to the United States it will be impossible for them to get their daily allotment of light wine, and consequently they are a little downcast, according to their officers. If we had our Great Lakes waterway open now, the Italians could come right in to Chicago harbor and get all they wanted in the line of liquid refreshments. If they don't like Chicago, Janesville could entertain them for a while.

A whole lot of people of these United States have about arrived at the conclusion that the peace treaty should be settled without delay. At the rate opponents and treaty boosters have been proceeding it looks as though the matter would never be settled.

Announcement that Ed. Nordman of Langlade county has been appointed state market director, meets with the approval of many of the farmers of the state. Mr. Nordman served three terms in the legislature and he was a staunch champion of the farmer legislation. He also was instrumental in bringing about the passage of many laws which directly benefited the farmer. He should make a good market director.

The Gazette kept a score of the number of automobiles bearing license plates from other states seen on the streets one day, with the following results: Illinois, 48; Michigan, 6; New York, 4; Iowa, 3; Ohio, 3; Montana, 2; Idaho, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Kansas, one each. This makes a total of 70. If each one of the occupants of the car tells of the friendly greeting extended to them by our citizens, Janesville will be well advertised in many sections of the United States.

Thursday is Dollar Day in Janesville and using past occasions as a standard to judge by, Janesville business men are going to have their hands full to take care of the trade which will come to them. Everyone seems to have an oversupply of money and now is the time of year each is thinking of the things he will need for the fall and winter seasons. Come in and look over these Dollar Day offerings.

After looking over those bargains advertised in the Dollar Day supplement of the Gazette last night, most folks will find a way to save enough money to have a good time at the fair next week.

The Wisconsin furniture dealers are discussing the question of whether the prices of beds will go up or down in 1920. If they go up many of us will have to sleep on the floor.

Their Opinions

Still Fighting.

Peace has come and war news has departed from the front page, yet no less than 23 wars are still in progress on the surface of the planet.—Madison Democrat.

"Your Share's Fair."

A great deal of work has got to be done to right the world and bring prices to a normal condition, and supplies to a normal amount. It can't be done for many years, if the people are all thinking how little work they can do and how much money they can spend.—Manitowoc Herald.

Prefer Bright Lights.

Yet of course many persons who might be good farmers stick to the bright lights and the opportunities to attend the movie show regularly.—Superior Telegram.

Another Armistice.

Both political parties ought to declare an armistice and postpone the next national campaign until after the peace treaty and the food problem are disposed of.—Appleton Crescent.

Need a Definition.

A news dispatch says a fine of five thousand dollars is to be imposed for profiteering, but it doesn't say what profiteering is. An exact defintion of the crime is more needed than a heavy penalty.—Wausau Record-Herald.

A Privilege.

The stay-at-homes should consider it a great privilege to vote for the soldier-sailor bonus on September 2. We all saved hundreds of times in dollars and cents what it will cost us to give the service men the compensation provided in the bill.—Marinette Eagle-Star.

Produce More.

Produce more, and waste less. That is the fundamental remedy for the situation. Other expedients are helpful, but temporary and incidental.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Too Late.

Plenty of sugar after the canning season is over is the latest promise. But of course the housewives want the sugar while the canning season still is on.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

Those desiring information write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by our bureau.

Q. Why is it that there are so few old maids among colored women? V. H.

A. One explanation given for the infrequency of unmarried colored women is that marriage among negroes usually does not carry the financial burden to the man that it does among whites. Colored women, when married, usually continue to be self-supporting.

Q. Does General Pershing speak French and Spanish? L. T. M.

A. General Pershing learned Spanish in the Philippines. When he went to France he did not know French, but he studied assiduously and in six months he was holding conferences with French officers without the use of an interpreter. In a year he was a good French linguist.

Q. What kind of wood absorbs the least water, and what kind absorbs water most quickly? G. F.

A. Lignum vitae, the hardest wood known, is the most impervious to water. Cypress wood absorbs water most quickly.

Q. What does the Indian name Pocahontas mean? S. F.

A. Pocahontas signifies "a stream between two hills."

Q. What is a leading question?

A. A leading question is one that suggests the answer to the one question. It is against the rules of court proceedings for a counsel to ask a witness leading questions, except in cross-examination. "Were you at the house of Mr. Jones Tuesday night?" is a leading question. The lawyer should ask, "Where were you Tuesday night?"

Q. How large is the vocabulary of the average person? N. B. H.

A. In daily intercourse, the vocabulary of the average person seldom exceeds 2,500 words. That of an educated person usually consists of less than 800 words.

Q. What is the lowest temperature recorded? B. K.

A. The lowest temperature ever recorded was at Werchojansk, Siberia, Jan. 15, 1885. The thermometer stood at 90 degrees and a fraction below zero. The ground in this part of Siberia freezes to a depth of 100 feet and never entirely thaws, even in summer.

Q. What is a pogrom? F. E.

A. The name pogrom is given to anti-Jewish riots in Russia. They first took place in 1881, after the assassination of Alexander II by the revolutionists. That the pogroms were organized and that they were countenanced by government officials was partially proved by the investigation and publication of secret government documents. These riots have been the cause of the immigation of large numbers of Jews to the United States.

Q. How did the elephant's trunk come to be so called? D. S.

A. The word trunk in this connection is a corruption of trump, which was the old English term. It was used because the elephant was said to make a noise like a trumpet.

TAFT'S BATH TUB.

It is said that when President Taft moved into the White House he found accommodations utterly inadequate in one respect. There was not a bath tub in the executive mansion large enough to hold a three hundred pound man and more than a quart of water at the same time.

Accordingly the ponderous president had a tub installed, according to those who know, which for size and white porcian beauty probably has no rival in the United States.

Perhaps never since Cleopatra took her daily beauty dip in the milk of three hundred she-asses has there been such an unsual and special arrangement for the ablutions of any chief executive.

When Taft left the White House this great and glorious bath tub fell into disuse. President Wilson, moderate and thoughtful in all things, probably felt that his proportions did not justify the use of the people's money in filling such an heroic tub with hot water once a day.

But Secretary of War Baker, who is a frequent and welcome guest about the White House, did not take that view of the case. It is said that when he first saw that bath tub, the well known Baker grin reached its uttermost limits. And when he also found ex-President Roosevelt's tennis court out in the back yard, he made a resolution that he would visit Woodrow often.

It is said that in these hot dog days, the almost daily relaxation of the secretary of war is to play a game of tennis on the White House court, and then take a bath in the Taft bath tub. Naturally, what was a bath tub for Taft is a veritable swimming pool for Baker. Thus the secretary of war is saved the trouble and expense of a trip to the seaside for natatorial exercise, and his services to the nation are uninterrupted.

ROY K. MOULTON

THE LUCKY CAVE-MAN.

In olden days the Cave-man dug
His home, or found it there,
With skins he lined the inside snug
And furnished it with care;
It's true he was the janitor
Of his apartment, new
Or old, this did not matter, for
He was the owner, too!

He did not worry at the price
Of anything to wear,
For shoes he'd cut an ample slice
Of skin and make a pair.
His coat and trousers also were
A one-piece garment, free
From all restrictions, and the fur
Was warm as wool can be!

There were no profiteers to fleece
Him on the price of food.
Of jerked meat he would take a piece
When he was in the mood.
Green groceries grew in the woods
Before this Cave-man's door.
He merely had to pick his goods—
They cost him nothing more!

Likewise, if he should wish to brew
A drink that suited him,
There was no W. C. T. U.
Or prohibition whim
To throttle his desire and make
Him cater to their way;
Oh, lucky Cave-man it would break
Your heart to live today!

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A GUEST

THE BALLAD OF HUMILIATION.

Not all the gold would I claim,
Not with the great would I be;
Lord, as I whisper Thy name,
Hearken, I pray to my plea,
Grant but one favor to me—
Teach me to live to this rule:
Keep me from ridicule free,
Spare me from playing the fool!

Spare me the blushes of shame
Madness demands as her fee;
Spare me the censure and blame
Ordered by Folly's decree;
Grant me the wisdom to see
Clearly through life's murky pool;
Let my good sense never flee,
Spare me from playing the fool!

Cast me for roles that are tame,
Ship me, if need be, to sea;
Keep me from glory and fame
But leave me no sad memory.
Let me not stand one, two three
In the classes attending life's school,
But grant me this one guarantee:
Spare me from playing the fool.

L'Envoi.

Lord, now I ask on my knee,
When the heat of excitement shall cool
Not to think of myself shamefully,
Oh, spare me from playing the fool!

The Daily Novelette

THE BOY AND THE AXE

Little Simon, son of Simon Simons, the meanest man in Pitchburg, was made to work for his father from the time he was a week old, impossibly absurd as it may seem. But stranger things than that have happened. However, they are a million other stories.

At that tender age, little Simon advertised by his rotundity, Bullbul's Baby Biscuits that old Simon was peddling.

A little later on, he was used to lay in a crib in a cornfield with nothing to eat, so as to yell and scare the crows away.

Later than that he was used to plant potatoes—old Simon teaching him that it was a game to drop the eyes in the holes and the ones that dropped the most in, won—ahem, nothing.

II.

One day, when little Simon was five years old and twelve weeks, he was sent out into the woods with an axe to chop some wood for supper.

But he never came back. In other words he disappeared, axe and all, as completely as if a woodpecker had swallowed him.

III.

Forty years after, Pitchburg still being on the map and now on a timetable, a man alighted from a train. He was loaded down with packages, diamonds, clothes and several automobiles.

Being shown to the home of Simon Simons, the man arrived there with all his gifts.

Yes, gifts! For Simon Simons. And yes, again! The giver was little Simon, returned home again— a millionaire.

IV.

When old Simon saw his son once more after forty years, and saw all the wonderful things he had brought, he tottered over and said, with tears streaming down his eyes and a pitiful expression on his crinkled old face:

"Simy! What did you do with the axe?"

Phanton Square Won

The Phanton Square is an honor awarded for attaining all-round development in the four sides of life. The order of the first degree is the bronze square. In order to get a bronze, a grade of at least 750 must be made out of a possible 1000 points in each side of a boy's life—social, religious, mental, and physical. After the grade has been made he must be voted into the order by the unanimous vote of all the leaders. This is followed by initiation and acceptance into the first degree. The first degree must be passed before the silver square can be won. Here a grade of 900 points must be made out of a thousand in all the four sides of the square. And for the third degree the boy must get 1000 points in all the sides, which wins for him the right to the gold square.

This year out of the 41 bronze squares awarded there were 13 Janesville boys among the group. Out of the five silver squares awarded, two went to Janesville boys. No gold squares were won. In fact in all the 13 years that the camp has been running, only about 16 boys have won gold squares.

Win Bronze Squares

The Janesville boys who won bronze squares are Henry Schwegler, John Smith, Rollin Gridley, Earl Jensen, Herbert Heise, Francis Crowley, Leslie Mohns, George Burpee, John Holmes, Carl Malmberg, Andrew Ewing, Daniel McCluskey, Robert Jacobs.

Do Well In Nature Study

Not only did Janesville boys show up well in athletics and aquatics, but also in nature study. Robert Grubb broke the camp record in the observation test. In fifteen minutes he named 56 different objects. These must be found and named correctly. The previous record was 54 objects. Leo Powers came near the record, naming 51.

YOUNG BOY TELLS OF ATTACK; ALLEGED MORON BEING HELD

A story full of viciousness as told by 9-year-old Emanuel Hilt, son of Alderman William Hilt, convinced Judge H. L. Maxfield in the municipal court that Henry Homstad should be held for trial. Homstad was taken into custody late yesterday afternoon in a west side pool hall by Alderman Hilt.

Emanuel Hilt, hardly old enough to realize the seriousness of the crime, took the witness stand and in a straightforward manner told of the alleged attack made on him by Homstad.

According to the story told by the boy, he was pulled into the bath house near the Jackson street bridge and told if he did not do as he was told he would be killed. He refused and was later taken to a grocery store and given an ice cream cone by the man.

Homstad, a carnival follower, who claims LaCrosse as his home, sat in the prisoner's dock and simply sneered at the story told by the boy.

"I never pulled him in the bath house and I was only in there for a minute," he shouted.

Judge Maxfield set the hearing for 10 o'clock, Sept. 8, and held him under $1500 bail.

UNIQUE MUSICAL PROGRAM GIVEN AT COUNTRY CLUB

A musical program followed the dinner that was given at the Country club last evening. The dinner was served at 6:50. Miss Elizabeth Schicker had charge of it. Covers were laid for 156. A new system was inaugurated last evening. As each one ordered, his seat was reserved, at which place a card with his name was placed. They were served by the order of receiving in turn. In the eevning a program of songs was given. The first part by "The Strolling Players" composed of Mrs. Alice S. Thomas, Mrs. James W. Heffron, and the Misses Edna McCulloch, Loraine Bowerman, Louise Bennett. They wore gypsy costumes. They appeared on the greens, in front of the club house. It was picturesque, as they strolled over the lawn singing the "Long, Long Trail," Miss Edna McCulloch sang "Sweet Little Mother of Mine," "Dear Old Pal," in which her high soprano voice showed to good advantage. Mrs. Heffron gave "Holy Yumpin Yimminy." She wore a Swedish costume. In her solo, "For You Alone," which followed, she showed much study and talent. Miss Loraine Bowerman sang two solos. Her "Cradle Song", showed her rich contralto voice to great advantage. The quartette gave two numbers, "Mother Machree," and "Can't You Hear Me Callin'." Boyd Hill played two violin obligatos.

The second part of the program was given by Miss Manilla Powers, a Janesville girl, who has been spending the winter studying in New York. She showed marked improvement since her appearance last year, and the audience was quite convinced that they were listening to a voice of wonderful promise. Miss Powers' teacher in New York city predicts for her a great future. A beautiful voice, joined with art and a magnetic personality that colored everything she sang, made the recital pleasing. Miss Louise Bennett played the accompaniments. The program was quite out of the ordinary. It was under the supervision of Mrs. John Rexford.

Voice of the People

To the Editor:

There seems to be a certain amount of apathy shown in regard to the Soldiers' Bonus bill, and while no hostility is known or shown, there does not seem the interest taken that the question deserves. There certainly is no reason why this movement should not be a popular one.

We certainly cannot so soon forget the hardships our boys endured for the paltry sum of one dollar per day, while we, who stayed at home, enjoyed all the comforts and luxuries that high prices and high wages could procure. Let us stop and think of the loyalty of those boys, many of whom left good positions and went forth in defense of our country. Shall we now, as loyal citizens, fall in our duty to them? Let us show the whole world that we do appreciate what those men have done and make the vote for the bonus practically unanimous.

1919 BLUE BOOK GIVES COMPLETE RECORD OF STATE

(BY FRED L. HOLMES.)

Madison, Aug. 26.—The first copies of the 1919 Blue Book were received by state superintendent of public property, M. F. Blumenfeld, today It was announced the entire 37,000 copies will be delivered in a short time and will be distributed through the state senators and assemblymen to their constituents.

The 1919 Blue Book was compiled and edited by Paul F. Hunter, well known Wisconsin newspaper man and the information contained in it is authentic. Everything in the book is complete up to Jan. 1, while many corrections in the various departments, etc., were made up to June.

The special feature of the book this year is that portion devoted to Wisconsin's war activities, there being 117 pages of facts and figures which show why Wisconsin was at the head of the list of states in all war activities.

Gov. E. L. Philipp wrote the brief review of the war activities which is followed by a brief account of the Wisconsin National guard in the Mexican border and world war, together with the personnel of officers and brief account of records of the Machine gun battalion of the Rainbow division and the famous Thirty-Second division in France.

Describes Draft.

Under the heading "Raising the National Army in Wisconsin," Maj. Edward A. Fitzpatrick, state draft administrator, gives a description of the draft.

Following the detailed account of the administration of the selective service law is a table showing the complete registrations, inductions, deferments and classifications of all registrants in the state by each of the 104 local draft boards; the personnel of the state draft administration, district boards, local boards, central and county legal advisory boards, and the medical advisory boards.

The activities of the state and county officials of defense are outlined in brief, followed by the financial statement of the state council of defense and the personnel of the state council, county councils, county non-war construction committees, war history chairmen for each county.

Activities Surveyed.

A survey is made of the varied activities of the state and county food administrations together with the personnel of each. This is followed by a similiar description of the fuel administration.

The war labor activities of the state are enumerated and the personnel is given of the United States employment service in Wisconsin, the state and community labor boards, county labor agents, county and local agents of the United States public service reserve, Boys' Working reserve, county directors, and the local chairmen of the bureau for returning soldiers and sailors.

A brief survey is made of the educational institutions in the war, that of the state university having been compiled by Grant M. Hyde of the department of journalism. The records of the normal schools and other institutions of higher education in the service together with the number of men trained in the S. A. T. C. follows.

The organization of the American War Veterans and the Liberty War Veterans of the World is described in brief as is the organization and activities of the Wisconsin Loyalty Legion.

Under the general heading of "Financing the War," the work of the four minute men is referred to and the names of the local chairmen are published. The administration of the Soldiers' aid is described with the financial statement up to April 1, 1919.

Liberty Loans Recorded.

Wisconsin's record in the four liberty loans and the final Victory loan is given in detail by counties, the quota and the amount subscribed in each loan with the grand total of subscriptions by counties for the fine loans of $471,194,250.

The great record of the United War Work campaign of 1918 is described. The same record is given of the Y. M. C. A. campaigns and the figures of the Y. W. C. A. campaigns.

The work of the Red Cross in Wisconsin is described.

The sales of war savings and thrift stamps in 1918 is given by counties, together with the name of the county chairman, followed by the record of the Knights of Columbus, and finally the adoptions of the fatherless children of France by counties in the eastern and western districts.

As usual the 1919 Blue Book contains the Declaration of Independence, the United States and Wisconsin constitutions with their amendments, the election statistics, statistics and personnel of the various branches of the federal government, including the Sixty-sixth congress; the list of Wisconsin postoffices alphabetically and by counties.

Newspapers Listed.

The list of Wisconsin newspapers is believed to be the most complete ever published in the Blue Book as it was carefully compiled and revised from a list furnished by the postmaster general and questionnaires sent to the editors of the newspapers themselves. The list shows there are 472 newspapers in Wisconsin, of which 53 are dailies and the balance weeklies or semi-weeklies.

The list shows that there are only 44 newspapers published in Wisconsin at present in foreign laguages as follows: German 34, Norwegian and Polish 3 each, Jewish 2, and Bohemian and Finnish 1 each.

The personnel of the state departments, commissions, boards, etc., is given up to June 1. This is followed by the complete personnel of the courts of Wisconsin and list of court commissions.

Glassco Gets Orders for Potato Shipments

Several requests for carload lots of potatoes have been received from other states by County Agent R. T. Glassco, who asks that any Rock county farmers who may have potatoes on hand which they desire to sell communicate with him. He suggests a possibility of several farmers clubbing together to make a carload shipment.

WISCONSIN AGAIN WINS LAURELS FOR FARMING PROGRESS

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—Wisconsin is again pioneering for the benefit of not only her own people but as well for the citizens of neighboring commonwealths.

Her experiment in battling against the armies of Gen. H. C. L. by the appointment of a market director will be watched with anticipation by the agricultural officials of Illinois. Charles Adkins, agricultural commissioner of the state, is the authority for the statement that Illinois will continue to meet the problem through agencies already established—county agents, county farm bureaus, and the state federation of these county organizations—the Illinois Agricultural association.

Falls in Line.

Illinois will likely be the next to start a campaign to rid its herds of scrub and grade sires.

The success of the drive in Wisconsin has attracted the attention of officials charged with the responsibility of stimulating improvement in the agricultural production of this great state. They have been securing details of the plan and expect to start a similar crusade. Although Illinois ranks high as a cattle producing state the leaders are anxious to keep the commonwealth in the fore front in meat and milk making.

License Law Looks Good.

Corn-belters who are looking to Wisconsin for farms are enthusiastic over the state's plan to license real estate agents. One of the editors of a group of farm papers circulating widely throughout the corn and grain belt states expressed the confidence farmers place in the plan when he said: "My admiration for Wisconsin's far-sighted real estate brokers has been greatly strengthened by the enactment of a law creating a real estate brokers' board with power to grant licenses only to persons who are trustworthy and competent to sell, exchange, buy, rent or negotiate deals of any kind connected with land." This publisher predicts that Wisconsin is entering on a new era in land settlement by thus preventing misrepresentation and fraud.

Given High Honors.

Wisconsin exhibitors at the Illinois State fair carried away their usual assortment of choice awards. Ralph Reynolds, of Columbia county won a championship with Shorthorns; Nathan Dickinson of Walworth county gained premier honor with Holsteins, and Adam Seitz of Waukesha county monopolized the best ribbons with his Ayrshires.

John L. Tormey, president of the Wisconsin Shorthorn Breeders' association expressed high admiration for the display of his breed which was presented by exhibitors from Wisconsin and her sister states. He reports that already one-thousand one-hundred and forty-nine breeders of Shorthorn cattle are registered in Wisconsin.

Export to Uruguay.

In the consignment of registered cattle which recently left New York for Uruguay there were several purchases from the Badger state, including Shorthorns from Anoka farms, Waukesha county, Eben E. Jones, La Crosse county, Charles Herr and Son, Columbia county, and Reynolds Bros., Columbia county; and Holsteins from Fred Pabst, J. Howard Green and Schley Bros., Waukesha county.

The French commission which was buying in Wisconsin and other states has discontinued its purchases for the present owing to unsatisfactory transportation and shipping conditions.

Plan Interests Prairie Men.

The Wisconsin dog law is a subject of interest among sheep men through the middle west. The enactment provides for license fees of $5 for females and $3 for males. Flock masters are expressing confidence that the passage of this law will do much to stimulate still greater interest in sheep husbandry in the Badger state.

Prof. Frank Kleinheinz of the University of Wisconsin is carrying on a sheep campaign in which he has the thorough-going cooperation of the county agents of the state. He has been greatly encouraged by the results of this missionary work and feels certain that Wisconsin will not only mature large numbers of western stock but rapidly develop a native industry that eventually will dwarf the out-put of some of the noted sheep ranging states.

BIG PICTURE AT APOLLO FAIR WEEK

Famous Picture from Famous Story Will Be Shown Four Days Next Week. Brought Here as Special Fair Week Attraction.

Manager Zanias of the Apollo Theatre has announced that the first four days of next week he will present for the benefit of Apollo regular patrons and Fair Week visitors Harold Bell Wright's famous story "The Eyes of the World" in picture form.

The photoplay follows the author's story with exactitude and the characters on the screen are the characters from the pages of the novel to the life.

It took eight months to film "The Eyes of the World" and the photoplay shows it in the careful working out of the smallest detail.

Mortensen to Sell His Farm Property

George Mortensen will auction off his personal property tomorrow at the Edward Duthie farm 8 miles north of Clinton and 3 miles east of Avalon. The sale will start at 1 o'clock and will be conducted by Col. W. T. Dooley. A lunch will be served. Mr. Mortensen announces that articles purchased for over $10, six months time will be given for payment providing the buyer produces a good note.

Some of the things listed for sale are 7 horses, 50 hogs, cows and chickens, a complete line of farm machinery consisting of cultivators, a new mower, crusher, plows, corn planter, drags, and a crusher.

Correction.

The prices in Apollo advertisement in last evening's Gazette were incorrect. The price should have been 35c for the main floor and first two rows of the balcony instead of 25c as it appeared.

In the advertisement of the Bicknell Mfg. & Supply Co., which appeared in last Friday's issue on truck attachments, this should have read "Torbensen internal gear drive."

SNAKES AND ANIMALS KILL 23,000 PEOPLE IN INDIA.

London.—In the past year 23,000 people were killed in India by snakes and wild animals, according to mortuary statistics made public here by the Home Office. Snakes were responsible for the death of more than half of the victims, according to the report. Most of the casualties were, of course, in the rural districts, but more than a thousand deaths from snake bites were recorded in cities.

The deaths from wild animals are higher than they have been for many years and are attributed to the fact that the animals became more numerour and bolder during the war period when there was very little hunting.

FLOURISHING POORHOUSE

London.—The almshouse at Worcester, built by Mayor Thomas Shewring in 1702 is in such a flourishing condition that the trustees have accumulated several thousand pounds above expenses, in addition to creating new pensions. IN DAYS GONE BY

FORTY YEARS AGO.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 27, 1879.—Meeting of the Y. M. C. A. tonight.—Work has begun in earnest on the M. C. Smith block, next to his clothing store.—Charles Slightham of the Slightham house, Madison, was in the city today, visiting his brother.—Frank L. Tappan has returned from his trip to Colorado. The scientific party of which he was a member disbanded soon after they got fairly upon the grounds, but this did not deter him, and, taking his tent and traps, he continued his journey, seeing much of interest besides collecting many valuable specimens.

Quarantine 6,000 Acres of Alfalfa Because of Weevils

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Montrose, Col.—Six thousand acres of alfalfa have been quarantined by county commissioners because of the alfalfa weevil, found there June 18 by the state entomologist, who stated that unless such action was taken all the alfalfa district would have to be quarantined. Under the quarantine restrictions no hay or straw can be shipped from the quarantined acreage.

Alfalfa weevils have alarmed the growers, who are keeping a close watch on their crops.

Men Like Old Regiment, So They Enlist

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Junction City, Kan.—Evidently the ex-members of the Seventh division, a regular unit, like the service. The unit is being demobilized here. So many of the men have re-enlisted that something like 470 officers have been ordered held here to command the reorganized units now being formed. Practically half of those re-enlisting are going back into their old units.

TEN YEARS AGO.

Aug. 27, 1909—The Misses Lois and Marguerite Thorne have returned from a visit to Amboy, Ill.—Mr. and Mrs. Glenn G. A large amount of damage was done. The steeple will have to be repaired, as bricks were torn off.—Fred W. Gillman was here from Evansville today.

H. C. L. Clashes With Regulations of Army

Chillicothe, Ohio.—Military regulations were framed long before old H. C. L. clambered into the spotlight. Nevertheless the rules and regulations must be obeyed. For that reason Major A. N. Besnah, supply officer at Camp Sherman, is up a tree.

A former member of the 83d division court-martialed in France and ordered dishonorably discharged after six months' imprisonment, is soon to be given his freedom.

Army regulations provide that he cannot retain his uniform but must be furnished "with a suit of civilian clothing at a cost not to exceed $10." Major Besnah says it simply can't be done, but orders are orders.

THE RACES

THE RACING PROGRAM WILL BE A SPECIAL FEATURE AT THIS YEAR'S FAIR.

Janesville has long been noted for its famous speed contests, its excellent mile and half-mile race courses and in the past the large entries of horses have given ample evidence of the fine tracks, service and courteous treatment accorded to all. Last year's race program was very complete, but this department is having more attention than in any year past and the speed program this year will be upon a scale much larger than ever before attempted. From the large number of entries being received the speed department will be taxed to the limit and the thousands who will daily attend this year's Fair will be given opportunity of witnessing the best races ever held in this section of the country. Our fine big amphitheatre and bleachers, flag bedecked and banners bobbling in the breeze, with its excellent view, helps to make this one of the best features of the fair.

THEY WILL BE THE BEST AND FASTEST RACES EVER HELD ON OUR GROUNDS!

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

HEART AND HOME .. ..

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-six years old and have been married seven years. I have a little boy four years old. My husband has part night work and so is too tired to do anything at home.

He gets $140 a month. I do all my own work, washing and ironing, and take care of the garden, chickens and cow. Many times I have night work when my boy is sick. My husband gives me no money to spend and buys me very few clothes. I never go anywhere, even to church. I have been home so long I do not miss it as I did at first. But is it right? Can I do right things for my child when I am alone so much? My husband does not want me to read; it is a waste of time.

I am very nervous, but he says I could control that if I tried and if I work hard enough it will take my mind off myself. He says he will stop working if I am not willing to stay at home and help save.

I love my husband and have tried hard to please him and always take his part when others criticise him. I have faults too. I am so tired and my giving up only makes him more selfish. What can I do?

DISCOURAGED WIFE.

Without a doubt your husband's intentions are good and he thinks he is treating you fairly. But he is not, he is making a slave of you.

First of all go back to church. Do not worry about your clothes. Your mind needs food. After you have been out and mingled with others again and get a different point of view, you will be less nervous and more fit to mother your child.

Reading is not "a waste of time." It shows ignorance to believe such a thing. Refresh your thoughts every chance you have with good books. Also read to your child. He will never forget the stories you read him and he will remember the hours spent that way as his happiest childhood.

Your husband has not assumed his share of the work. If you do the housework, including the washing and ironing, he should take care of the garden, chickens and cow as much as he can. Of course some of the care would fall upon you because of his irregular hours at work.

You are nervous because you are alone too much. Take time to go away from home. Cultivate friends. Your husband will be jealous of your new interests and will complain and scold. Disregard what he says and act independently. When he threatens to stop work, tell him that if he does you will leave him. There is no reason why you should put up with a husband who will not work. You could get a position as housekeeper and take your little boy with you. Of course I do not advise this unless your husband gives up his position and loafs.

Consider yourself first. Your husband will grow more selfish all the time unless you assert yourself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two respectable girls and we have an enemy in our town who talks about us and has all the boys and girls turned against us.

How can we keep these people from talking about us, and how can we make friends with the rest of the boys and girls in town?

.... CURLY AND BLUE EYES.

There is never smoke without fire. You must be more careful about your conduct so that people will have no reason to talk about you. Discretion is absolutely necessary if you want to be respectable.

For a while do not think about being popular; instead, give your thought to doing the right and refined thing. If you go to school, study and improve your minds all you can. If you work, strive to do the most perfect work possible. Your effort to improve yourself will show in your character and people will remark about the change in you.

Be very careful not to talk about others in an unkind way. If you are lovable and charitable, even toward your enemies, people will surely admire you.

Let me caution you against going with young men of questionable character. Choose your friends with care and keep their respect. Do not cheapen yourselves by "spooning."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a girl I run around with, but of late have heard things about her.

(1) Should I run around with her or not?

(2) Would I get my name up if I did?

(3) I love a boy and he loves me, but we don't get along very well. Is it true love? I am 19 years old.

BABY DOLL.

(1) If you chum with the girl you are in a position to judge for yourself what her character is. If you have reason to know that the criticisms are true, tell her that you cannot approve of the things she does. If she remains careless about her conduct, let her go her way, and find new friends for yourself.

(2) If you associate with people who do not care about their reputation, you will be judged to be in their class.

(3) No, it is not true love. If it were you would be happy together and think too much of each other to quarrel.

SIDE TALKS —BY— RUTH CAMERON

WHY WE REFUSE TO ADMIT MISTAKES.

A young friend of mine who has had a college education and who thinks a great deal (perhaps too much) of the small manifestations of refinement and education, is much upset because her mother does not use good English.

Her mother will say "ain't." She prefers "it's me" to "it's I." (Why is the incorrect form so much more natural, I wonder—another proof of natural depravity?) She always insists on "laying" down.

"It's so embarrassing," says the daughter, "when I introduce her to my friends." She is a very clever young woman and has just obtained an assistant professorship in a large college, so her friends are mostly of the "highbrow" type.

She Had Done More Than Suggest.

"Couldn't you just tactfully suggest," I began——

"Suggest," she repeated scornfully. "I've begged her not so say 'ain't,' and told her over and over again about 'lay' and 'lie.'"

"And what does she say?"

"She says: 'Let me alone. I don't want to be found fault with all the time.'"

There are certain situations in life which give one a defrauded feeling because one cannot throw one's sympathies whole-heartedly on either side. And this, I think (and all the similar ones of which it is a type) is such a situation.

Which Way Do Your Sympathies Lean?

One can see just how the daughter's criticism galls the mother, and just how the mother's "let me alone" attitude antagonizes the daughter.

Of couse, it isn't a vital matter that the mother should say "isn't" instead of "ain't," but that "let me alone" is the symbol of an attitude. It means that she does not want to make use of the college education which she has been able to give her daughter. It means that she does not want to grow. It means that she would rather keep on making mistakes than admit that she has been making them.

Try This Test On Yourself Sometime.

I think that last is the crux of a great deal of resentment of criticism. If you admit that you should do a thing differently, you admit that you have been doing it wrongly. And some people are so unreasonably sensitive that it is absolute agony to make such an admission. Therefore, rather than make it, they persist in doing as they have done because they have a subconscious ostrich-like notion that thereby they justify the past.

Absurd? Yes. Illogical? Yes. But very human, don't you think?

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

CARBUNCLE

A carbuncle is grandfather to a boil. A boil is the big brother of a pimple. A pimple is a little pus clamoring for an opening. Old Mrs. Gamp's favorite treatment is picking the pimple, pinching the boil and poulticing the carbuncle. She picks the pimple with any old thing, with never a thought of sterilization, taking no stock in this germ thory of the doctors. Such picking often induces general blood poisoning. Mrs. Gamp pinches a boil with the idea of getting out the "core," and her pinching treatment not only aggravates the soreness but invariably prolongs the time of healing. But just why a carbuncle should be poulticed (or anything else, for that matter) I have never understood. I have tried patiently to get through my feeble intellect the modus operandi of poultices, but I can't just do it.

The old women—some of whom wear pants and write M. D. after their names—hint that the poultice of flaxseed meal or bread or soap and sugar, or worse, works some mysterious benefit by "drawing." It draws flies from the environment, admiration from the bystanders and various expletives from the owner of the carbuncle. Aside from these things, the poultice has very feeble traction power.

A carbuncle is an infection (which means an invasion of a tissue by germs) of the true skin and the layer of fat under the skin. That infection should pentrate so deeply, unrestricted, as it usually is (for instance, in a pimple or a boil), signifies either that the pus-producing germs are of an unusually virulent strain or that the individual's natural resisting powers are seriously depleted, or both.

If intelligent treatment may be neglected or postponed in the case of a pimple or boil, while poultices or salves are being played with on the ground that the trouble is not serious, such trifling in the case of a carbuncle cannot be justified, because of the menace to life itself.

A carbuncle, or anything resembling a carbuncle, must be freely and fearlessly incised, thoroughly laid open through its every undermining recess, with the patient under a general anesthetic, of course. The earlier this is done the better. No matter how feeble the patient, the operation is a far less exhausting strain on endurance than the carbuncle. Sometimes radical excision of the whole sloughing mass is best. Necrotic, sloughing or dead tissue should always be removed.

In order to stimulate the patient's natural resisting power, a vaccine prepared from the germs present in the carbuncle may be administered.

Perhaps the least harmful dressing to apply while awaiting surgical treatment consists of large gauze compresses kept wet constantly, with a hot solution of a tablespoonful of citrate of soda and two tablespoonfuls of common salt, in boiled water.

DANCE FROCK OF YELLOW TAFFETA

Mellow yellow taffeta makes this lovely dance frock for the debutante. The design is artfully simple and might be called plain save for the petal effect at the hips. The bodice is cut on camisole lines and a tiny cluster of satin flowers fastened to the shoulder strap is the only bit of trimming. The deep purple ostrich fan carried is an effective color note.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Obsession of the Liver

1. Please advise me how to remove liver spots from the face. Was told that once they appear they are there to stay. Is that true? Does a bad liver or bad blood cause pimples or blackheads on the face, chest and back? Is a person 25 years old too young to have cancer? Could you recommend something that is good for these liver troubles? Does the habit of taking a physic every day injure the system?

(Mrs. H. H.)

ANSWER.—1. Six somersaults twice a day and a reasonable amount of open air exercise every day, such as swimming, hiking, etc., will remove liver spots, so-called. 2. No. 3. Cancer sometimes occurs in children or young adults, though most common after middle age. 4. See answer to question No. 1. 5. The habit does a great deal of harm to the system in various ways. I'd prefer the alleged evils of constipation to the positive evils of the cathartic habit.

Toying with a Bunion

I have bunions or enlarged joints of long standing. Two months ago a small growth appeared on one of them. I applied iodine, but the growth persists and is becoming more painful. It seems spongy, and slight pressure makes it hurt a long time. Can these enlarged joints be remedied by operation? Does such an operation affect one's gait afterward? (Mrs. G. S.)

ANSWER.—The "growth" is probably a thickening of joint lining or exuberant granulations. Iodine is useless, as is every other external remedy for an established bunion. Only an operation by a competent surgeon will give permanent relief. The gait is not affected, unless improved, by the operation. Usually the patient must remain off the feet for from two to three weeks.

BUTTER AT $5 A POUND.

London.—Major Sir Keith Fraser called the attention of the house of commons to the fact that butter is being sold in London at the exorbitant price of $5.12 a pound under the conditions provided by the kitchen committee. The major explained that pats of butter weighing one-quarter of an ounce cost 2 cents a pat at restaurants.

Sir J. T. Agg-Gardner replied that the committee had no desire to profiteer, but under the regulations of the food controller they were compelled to make the arrangement.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

THE LOWEST EBB.

What good was it being experienced, knowing all the ways there were of making money, if you could not even get a chance to tackle a proposition with the slightest risk to it? What good was self-confidence if you had no play for it? How could you "talk up" to a man when you didn't dare refuse whatever stingy little job he offered you because of the drag of dependent—— He stopped the traitor thought again and spurned it from him. But he was tired to the core, footsore and cross and disgusted with everything. By the time he reached home he was in as low a mood as he had ever been—as low as any young man could be.

Annie, as it happened, was quite as tired as he. Her nerves were frayed, her body exhausted from work and the incessant demands of the children.

Bernie could no more remember what started the strange domestic storm that followed the arrival at the flat than one can tell just which shower drop first touches the ground. Perhaps he flung a cross word to Rob, who was making a distracting din with his toy horn. It may have been a complaint about the state of the room or the meagerness of dinner. It didn't matter what it was. Anything would have done it.

There was a sudden temperamental clash like the coming together of surcharged storm clouds. It was the sort of thing common enough between married pairs—justifiably common between the poverty-torn spirits of the tenement man and woman.

There was nothing odd about it except that the Carrolls had few flare-ups, and never before one of such intensity. It was as if the accumulated heartaches and dissatisfaction of years were released at a touch, as the insignificant match makes the mighty havoc possible.

Whatever was the word that started it, there were soon others and still others, bandied back and forth without thought, without care for where or what they hit. The words mattered little. They voiced rebellion of soul against enchaining circumstances, the outbursts of pent-up hearts, weak hittings-out from weary bodies.

"Twelve dollars!" cried Annie huskily, bringing her hand down had upon the table! I can't buy food for us all with it, or pay the rent, or find clothes to cover us!"

"You can't! Well, you'll have to, that's all there is to it. You can pay less for things! You've always had expensive notions. You're always talking about buying nice clothes for the children and now things for the flat. I suppose you think I can send the boys to private school on my earnings!"

Annie's blazing eyes stopped him.

"I have expensive notions! That's a nice thing for you to say, with all I used to hear from you about making your five thousand a year! Where are your ambitions? What real effort have you made?"

"I guess I've made all the effort I could!" flung Bernard, shoving his plate back so sharply that it upset the baby's glass of milk.

The outraged baby raised a yowl of protest. Annie snatched him up, with a rebuking glare at her husband, and hushed the little one with kisses and mother words.

"What's a man to do anyhow," went on Bernie, "with a houseful of children and a million expenses to meet? It's nothing but dig, dig, dig! All you think of is the kids. Does it ever occur to you that I'd like to live a little, too?"

Annie turned.

"Live a little—what living do I do, struggling here day after day, year after year, to make ends meet? Is my work easier than yours, I'd like to know? Who bears the children? Who takes care of them when they're sick or hurt? Who teaches them and tries to bring them up with some decent sort of ideals? Extravagance on sixteen a week! And now it's to be twelve! Huh!" Annie tossed her head and snapped her fingers in wordless expressiveness. She was not thinking—ony feeling.

Norwegian Pudding — One-half pound prunes, two cups cold water, one cup sugar, one inch piece stick cinnamon, one and one-third cups boiling water, one-third cup cornstarch, one tablespoon lemon juice.

Wash prunes, then soak one hour in cold water and boil until soft; remove stones, then add sugar, cinnamon, boiling water, and simmer 10 minutes. Dilute cornstarch with enough cold water to pour easily, add to prune mixture and cook five minutes. Remove cinnamon, mold, then chill and serve with cream.

Fruit Tapioca Pudding—Wash one-half cup of tapioca well and then place in a saucepan and add two cups of cold water. Bring to a boil and cook slowly until clear and the tapioca is soft. Add one cup of milk, one well beaten egg, one-half cup of sugar, one teaspoon of vanilla.

Beat well to mix and then cook for 15 minutes longer and then add one cup of crushed peaches. Cook for five minutes and then cool. Serve with crushed peach sauce.

CANDY.

Chocolate Fudge—One and one-half cups of granulated sugar, three-fourths cup milk, one tablespoon cocoa, butter size of a walnut, one-fourth cup chopped walnuts.

Boil all together until, when tried in cold water, it forms a soft ball. Take from fire, beat till thick, add nuts while beating.

Pour out on buttered platter, cut in squares.

Double this recipe may be used if desired. Use a measuring cup when measuring ingredients.

Corn Syrup Fudge—Two squares chocolate, one-half cup milk, two cups light brown sugar, six tablespoon light corn syrup, two tablespoons fat, one teaspoon vanilla.

First melt your chocolate, then slowly add milk. The other ingredients are then added.

Nuts or peanuts may be added if desired. White sugar may also be used instead of brown.

DISCOVERIES.

Egg Yolks Alone—Mayonnaise and boiled salad dressing can be made with the yolks of eggs alone.

Care of Hot Water Bottle—When the water is emptied from the bag, hang it to dry, then fill with air by blowing into the bag, then replace the stopper but do not fasten it too tightly. The air holds the sides of the bag apart and prevents them from sticking together. The stopper should not be screwed in too tight as it puts unnecessary pressure on the edges.

Put Up Every Pound of Fruit You Can Get This Summer

Delicious Jams, Jellies and Preserves made by this recipe:

Many a woman hesitates to try putting up fruit at home.

She fears she will only waste expensive materials.

It really is very simple. Just make your preserving syrup with ½ Karo (Red Label) and ½ sugar instead of sugar alone.

You can then be as sure of your results as the woman who always has "luck" with her preserving.

Nice fine, clear Karo Syrup has a natural affinity for the fruit juices. It blends the sugar with the juice—brings out the rich "fruity" flavor, and insures firm jams and jellies that never "candy" in the glass.

A well-filled fruit pantry will give you much pleasure this winter, when fresh fruits are scarce and high, if you just use Karo Syrup with your sugar.

For Cooking, Baking and Candy Making Karo (Red Label) is used in millions of homes. In all cooking and baking recipes use Karo instead of sugar. It is sweet, of delicate flavor, and brings out the natural flavor of the food.

The Magnificent Ambersons

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.

She seemed to have fallen asleep, and George moved to go, but a faint pressure upon his fingers detained him, and he remained, with her hand still pressed against his cheek. After a while he made sure she was asleep, and moved again, to let the nurse come in, and this time there was no pressure of the fingers to keep him. She was not asleep, but, thinking that if he went he might get some rest, and be better prepared for what she knew was coming, she commanded those longing fingers of hers—and let him go.

He found the doctor standing with the nurse in the hall; and, telling them that his mother was drowsing now, George went back to his own room, where he was startled to find his grandfather lying on the bed, and his uncle leaning against the wall. They had gone home two hours before, and he did not know they had returned.

"The doctor thought we'd better come over," Amberson said, then was silent, and George, shaking violently, sat down on the edge of the bed. His shaking continued, and from time to time he wiped heavy sweat from his forehead.

The hours passed, and sometimes the old man upon the bed would snore a little, stop suddenly, and move as if to rise, but George Amberson would set a hand upon his shoulder, and murmur a reassuring word or two.

Once George gasped defiantly: "That doctor in New York said she might get better! Don't you know he did? Don't you know he said she might?"

Amberson made no answer.

Dawn had been lurking through the smoky windows, growing stronger for half an hour, when both men started violently at a sound in the hall; and the Major sat up on the bed. It was the voice of the nurse speaking to Fanny Minafer, and the next moment Fanny appeared in the doorway making contorted efforts to speak.

Amberson said weakly: "Does she want us—to come in?"

But Fanny found her voice, and uttered a long, loud cry. She threw her arms about George, and sobbed in an agony of loss and compassion:

"She loved you!" she wailed. "She loved you! She loved you! Oh, how she did love you!"

* * * * * * *

Major Amberson remained dry-eyed through the time that followed; he knew that this separation from his daughter would be short; that the separation which had preceded it was the long one. He worked at his ledgers no more under his old gas drop-light, but would sit all evening staring into the fire, in his bedroom, and not speaking unless someone asked him a question. He seemed almost unaware of what went on around him, and those who were with him thought him dazed by Isabel's death, guessing that he was lost in reminiscences and vague dreams. "Probably his mind is full of pictures of his youth, or the Civil war, and the days when he and mother were young married people and all of us children were jolly little things—and the city was a small town with one cobbled street and the others just dirt roads with board sidewalks." This was George Amberson's conjecture, and the others agreed; but they were mistaken. The Major was engaged in the profoundest thinking of his life. No business plans which had ever absorbed him could compare in momentousness with the plans that absorbed him now, for he had to plan how to enter the unknown country where he was not even sure of being recognized as an Amberson—not sure of anything, except that Isabel would help him if she could. The Major was occupied with the first really important matter that had taken his attention since he came home invalided, after the Gettysburg campaign, and went into business, and he realized that everything which had worried him or delighted him during this lifetime between then and today—all his buying and building and trading and banking—that it all was trifling and waste beside what concerned him now.

Meanwhile, the life of the little bereft group still forlornly centering upon him began to pick up again, as life will, and to emerge from its own period of dazedness. It was not Isabel's father but her son who was really dazed.

A month after her death he walked abruptly into Fanny's room, one night, and found her at her desk, eagerly adding columns of figures with which she had covered several sheets of paper.

"George! You startled me."

"I beg your pardon for not knocking," he said huskily. "I didn't think."

She turned in her chair and looked at him solicitously. "Sit down, George, won't you?"

"No. I just wanted——"

"I could hear you walking up and down in your room," said Fanny. "You were doing it ever since dinner, and it seems to me you're at it almost every evening. I don't believe it's good for you—and I know it would worry your mother terribly if she——" Fanny hesitated.

"See here," George said, breathing fast, "I want to tell you once more that what I did was right. How could I have done anything else but what I did do?"

"Oh; I don't pretend to judge," Fanny said soothingly, for his voice and gesture both partook of wildness. "I know you think you did, George."

"Think I did!'" he echoed violently. "My God in heaven!" And he began to walk up and down the floor. "What else was there to do? What choice did I have? Was there any other way of stopping the talk?" He stopped, close in front of her, gesticulating, his voice harsh and loud: "Was there any other way on earth of protecting her from the talk?"

Miss Fanny looked away. "It died down before long, I think," she said nervously.

"That shows I was right, doesn't it?" he cried. "If I hadn't acted as I did, that slanderous old Johnson woman would have kept on with her slanders—she'd still be—"

"No," Fanny interrupted. "She's dead. She dropped dead with apoplexy one day about six weeks after you left. I didn't mention it in my letters because I didn't want—I thought—"

"Well, the other people would have kept on, then. They'd have—"

"I don't know," said Fanny, still averting her troubled eyes. "Things are so changed here, George. The other people you speak of—one hardly knows what's become of them. Of course not a great many were doing the talking, and they—well, some of them are dead, and some might as well be—you never see them any more—and the rest, whoever they were, are probably so mixed in with the crowds of new people that seem never even to have heard of us—and I'm sure we certainly never heard of them—and people seem to forget things so soon—they seem to forget anything. You can't imagine how things have changed here!"

George gulped painfully before he could speak. "You—you mean to sit there and tell me that if I'd just let things go on— Oh!" He swung away, walking the floor again. "I tell you I did the only right thing! You think I was wrong!"

"I'm not saying so," she said.

"You did at the time!" he cried. "You said enough then, I think. Well, what have you to say now, if you're so sure I was wrong?"

"Nothing, George."

"It's only because you're afraid to!" he said, and he went on with a sudden bitter divination: "You're reproaching yourself with what you had to do with all that; and you're trying to make up for it by doing and saying what you think mother would want you to, and you think I couldn't stand it if I got to thinking I might have done differently. Oh, I know! That's exactly what's in your mind: you do think I was wrong! So does Uncle George. I challenged him about it the other day, and he answered just as you're answering—evaded, and tried to be gentle! I don't care to be handled with gloves! I tell you I was right, and I don't need any coddling by people that think I wasn't! And I suppose you believe I was wrong not to let Morgan see her that last night when he came here, and she—she was dying. If you do, why in the name of God did you come and ask me? You could have taken him in! She did want to see him. She—"

Miss Fanny looked startled. "You think—"

"She told me so!" And the tortured young man choked. "She said—'just once.' She said 'I'd like to have seen him—just once!' She meant—to tell him good-bye! That's what she meant! And you put this on me, too; you put this responsibility on me! But I tell you, and I told Uncle George, that the responsibility isn't all mine! If you were so sure I was wrong all the time—when I took her away, and when I turned Morgan out—if you were so sure, what did you let me do it for? You and Uncle George were grown people, both of you, weren't you? You were older than I, and if you were so sure you were wiser than I, why did you just stand around with your hands hanging down, and let me go ahead? You could have stopped it if it was wrong, couldn't you?"

Fanny shook her head. "No, George," she said slowly. "Nobody could have stopped you. You were too strong, and—"

"And what?" he demanded loudly.

"And she loved you—too well."

George stared at her hard, then his lower lip began to move convulsively, and he set his teeth upon it but could not check its frantic twitching.

He ran out of the room.

She sat still, listening. He had plunged into his mother's room, but no sound came to Fanny's ears after the sharp closing of the door; and presently she rose and stepped out into the hall—but could hear nothing. What interview was sealed away from human eye and ear within the lonely darkness on the other side of that door—in that darkness where Isabel's old special chairs were, and her own special books, and the two great walnut wardrobes filled with her dresses and wraps? What tragic argument might be there vainly striving to confute the gentle dead? "In God's name, what else could I have done?" For his mother's immutable silence was surely answering him as Isabel in life would never have answered him, and he was beginning to understand how eloquent the dead can be. They cannot stop their eloquence, no matter how they have loved the living; they cannot choose. And so, no matter in what agony George should cry out, "What else could I have done?" and to the end of his life no matter how often he made that wild appeal, Isabel was doomed to answer him with the wistful, faint murmur.

Dinner Stories

A stranger dining at a foreign hotel was accosted by a detective, who said to him:

"Beg your pardon, we are in search of an escaped convict, and as a matter of form you will oblige us by showing your passport."

"Do I look like a convict?"

"Possibly not. In any case, I shall require to see your passport."

The stranger, feeling annoyed, presented the officer with the bill of fare and the latter commenced to read:

"Sheep's head; leg of mutton, pig's feet.' Very good," he observed, "the description tallies. You will please come along with us."

Lou Guernsey was defending one party to an auto collision and was cross-examining a lady witness who was undeniably pretty.

"Have you any idea what caused this accident?" thundered Lou.

"I think so," said the fair witness sweetly.

"Then tell the court how it happened," thundered Lou, eager for facts.

"Must I tell the truth?"

"You have sworn to do so."

"Well, sir, I was standing on the corner, and that gentleman turned to look at something and ran into the other machine."

"Ah, divined the astute Guernsey. "He turned to look at you. That makes you an accessory before the fact, madame."

"I—I think it was the—the accessories he was looking at," murmured the witness.

"I reckon I'd better speak to your pa tonight, Zaline," said the young swain who had won the heart and hand of the eldest daughter of "Gap" Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark., and was desirous of obtaining her father's consent.

"Aw, Sankey, dearest," returned the maiden. "Paw had three of his best dogs pizened night before last, and I'm afraid that the idy of losing three dogs and winning one son-in-law mightn't strike him favorably. Lez wait till he has time to get the two transactions sorter separted in his mind."

TONGUE CAUGHT IN BOTTLE

London.—The medical staff at the Anti-Vivisection Hospital, Battersea, were called upon to perform a novel operation the other day when a little 8-year-old girl's tongue became caught in the neck of a tin metal bottle, which she had been using for drinking. The tongue was drawn into the neck, and owing to the air pressure, could not be released. The surgeons cut out the bottom of the bottle and eventually had to slit the container from top to bottom to release the tongue.

"Gee-Whiz! How it Hurts—The Pain in My Foot!"

"Sometimes it is in my arm. Merciful Heaven, how my back hurts in the morning!" It's all due to an overabundance of that poison called uric acid. The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking the advice of Dr. Pierce, which is "keep the kidneys in good order." "Avoid too much meat, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water, preferably hot water, before meals, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric." This can be obtained at almost any drug store.

Send a bottle of water to the chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive free medical advice as to whether the kidneys are affected. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, take heed, before too late. Get Anuric (anti-uric-acid), for it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Ask your nearest druggist for it or send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Doctor Issues Warning And Tells How to Stop Tobacco Habit

New York: Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: I am often asked if I know anything to stop the tobacco habit and I always recommended Nicotol, which I have prescribed with great success. Nicotol contains no habit-forming drugs, is absolutely harmless and produces astonishing results in a very short time. The use of tobacco saps the vitality, vim, vigor and ambition of the slave who is enthralled by its seductive effects. It undermines the health and leaves the victim an easy prey to general debility, throat and lung troubles, nervousness, insomnia, heart trouble, kidney trouble, headache, tongue and lip cancer and even blindness. Physicians the world over trace the above diseases and many others to nicotine poisoning.

If you want to free yourself from tobacco, go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets. Take one tablet after each meal and in a short time you will have no desire for tobacco—the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poisoning out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note: When asked about Nicotol tablets one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit—away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists including People's Drug Co., and Reliable Drug Co.

Give Me a Friendly, Natural Hand-shake

an' a friendly natural tobacco. Keep yo' put-on airs an' "sauced-up" tobaccos for the fellow that likes nut sundaes better than home made pie—

So says a friend of ours named Velvet Joe. And he just about hits the nail on the head.

Velvet is made for men who think there's no smoke like real tobacco. If you are that sort of man, listen:

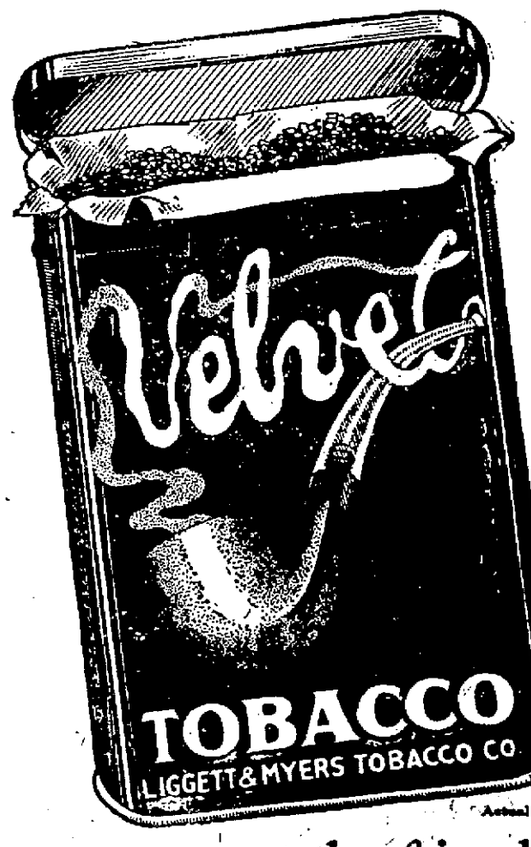

Velvet was born in old Kentucky, where more than one good thing comes from. It was raised as carefully as any other Kentucky thoroughbred. But the real secret of Velvet's friendly qualities is its slow natural ageing in wooden hogsheads. Ageing in the wood never hurt anything—and least of all, tobacco.

And so we say, Velvet is good tobacco—nothing more or less. It runs second to none.

The picture of the pipe on the tin needn't keep you from rolling a jim-dandy cigarette with Velvet.

CONROY'S HOME RUN BEATS ALBANY, 2-1

JANES PLAY WITH NEW LIFE BACK OF SCHULTY

Big Ben Conroy's sparkling home-run in the seventh inning with a man on the paths ahead of him was responsible for Janesville's 2 to 1 victory over the reinforced Albany nine at the homecoming celebration there yesterday afternoon. A fair-sized flock of Janesville rooters howled with glee when the big fellow leaned against one of George Zabel's fast ones and met it squarely on the nose. The pill rose high and higher and finally began to descend about the time Conroy was rounding second, cap in hand, and tearing like a wild man. It landed in the weeds back of the left field fence and it is barely possible that the kids out there are still looking for it. It was a rare sight for bum eyes to see Zabel standing in the box with a dejected look on his map watching Nate Tilley and Edwards hop over the fence to chase Conroy's drive. The old time Chicago Cubs' twirler hardly knew what had happened.

Great Pitchers' Duel.

Errorless fielding by both sides helped to speed up the game and resulted in its being the fastest and best one played in that section this year. It was a pitchers' duel from start to finish, Hank Schultz, McCoy All Star slabster, pitching for the Janes, having the better of it over George Zabel, Beloit Fairy twirler, who substituted for Bunny Hearn after the Fairies had arranged to play Footville at Evansville today. If this man Schultz can be secured as a regular pitcher here Janesville may yet make a showing in the Shore league.

He established a great record on the pasture diamond yesterday, whiffing 13 men, and walking but one—that, when Tilley was punctured on the skull. He allowed only four hits, three of which were infield taps, and the other a Texas leaguer. Two of the hits came in the fourth inning with two down, but the reliable gent came through and struck out the next man, much to the Albanians' disappointment.

Albany Scores in 7th.

The other brace of bingles were registered by Albany in the last of the seventh just after the Janes had racked up a two-run lead. Witte, first up, beat out an infield poke and in stealing second was hit by the ball, which rolled off his back and allowed him to get to third. A cleverly fielded ball by Bill Lathrop, who was playing first for the Janes, resulted in an out at first and kept Witte at third. Edwards speared one to short center and Witte scored. Tilley walked when beaned, forcing Edwards to second. With two men on again and only one out, Schultz tightened up and struck out the next two. In the last inning with three heavy hitters up in a row, he knocked them down in one-two-three strike-out order.

Only three Albanites faced Schultz in each of the other seven innings, while but three Janes batted in each of six stanzas. Fielding was perfect all the way through and was a revelation to the big crowd of villagers who had gathered to pull Albany to a victory.

Albany was loaded for the occasion, not only with Zabel and Tilley, but with Witte, another Beloit star, on first, and Footville's crack catcher, Silverthorn, on the job. It was an array of real stars, but the Janes, with a regular pitcher, proved just a little too strong.

Dopp, Miller, Croake Star.

Conroy was easily the hero of the game. Besides his home run he also connected with an infield hit in the fifth inning. Hank Schultz became a little worried in the sixth and lammed one for two sacks, only to be caught going to third on a fielder's choice. Croake was the only other Jane to get a hit and this he did in the eighth despite the strong kidding he was handed by his former Albany friends and mates.

Zabel was touched for four hits while striking out eight Janes. He was going good yesterday but Conroy's hit was too much.

Dopp played a pretty little game at third, handling three chances without a boot, while Miller showed up well at second with four chances handled perfectly. Croake caught a good game as usual, while Kakuske helped out matters by grabbing two high ones to the outfield.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By George McManus.

Another National League Fight Is Listed On Hockett

National league followers have another fight in prospect now when the barons of the senior organization convene. Garry Herrmann, of the Reds, and Charles Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, are going to hook up, because Ebbetts accuses Herrmann of trying to coax Jimmy Johnson and Hi Meyers away from the Dodgers. Of course, Herrman denies the charge, but Ebbetts declares he has proof and will preserve it until the magnates meet when he will come forth with a full expose and will suggest a remedy.

This year of all recent years, seems to cop the pewter for interferences. Nearly every magnate in the National league has made one or more charges against other clubs for dickering with players, so that when the subject is brought forth at the annual meeting there should be something unusual doing.

Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pirates, however, is not going to wait for any of his associates in the Heydler circuit to bring the matter to a focus for he declares he has already framed some suggestions that will take care of this point nicely. Dreyfuss says he will never be satisfied until there is a rule prohibiting the sale of a player from one club to another after June 15th, then the magnates will know the races will be as they should be and the public will have no opportunity to utter even the slightest bit of criticism.

The manner in which the New York Giants have loosened their purse strings for fast material this season has thoroughly disgusted Dreyfuss and some other magnates. It has also sickened a portion of the baseball following, at least, that portion of it that delights in close races won on their merit and without the aid of a generous bankroll. Dreyfuss was long ago labelled the chief kicker of the National, but in this instance his kicks are certain to be for the good of baseball, as all fans know money can buy a pennant in any league. At any rate that next session promises to be a hummer.

FAIRY-FOOTVILLE GAME IS ON TODAY

The Beloit Fairies and Footville White Sox are battling at the Evansville homecoming this afternoon. A number of local baseball bugs are on hand for the big affair.

The game was arranged late yesterday after Manager Murphy of the Lawrence Janes had cancelled the game with Footville and had notified the committee that the Samson Tractors would be substituted. This arrangement not being satisfactory to the Cut-off City committee, the Fairies were secured.

Bunny Hearn was slated to be ready for mound duty this afternoon to be opposed by Lentz for Footville.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

The White Sox and Tigers have the edge in the American league free-for-all principally because of their ability to win games at home. By the same token the Cleveland Indians, who had rosy visions of a pennant early in the season, have apparently fallen by the wayside because of their inability to hand out the lickings on their own ball field.

Statistics recently compiled show that the White Sox have won over two-thirds of their home games, a .700 percent average, to be exact. The Terrible Tigers have set almost as good an average in Detroit, also winning over two-thirds of their games with visiting teams.

The St. Louis Browns and the Yankees have had better luck at home than the Indians.

Chicago's lead in the chase is easily understood when it is noticed that they lead the league in winning games abroad also. The Indians have run a close second in victories on the other fellow's ball field, and, were they able to win a goodly number of their contests in Cleveland would now be giving the White Sox a tougher battle for the rag.

The White Sox and the Indians are the only teams in the league which have won more than half their games on the road.

The superiority of the western clubs over the eastern contingent so far this season is shown in the fact that the four clubs from the sunrise division have been very heavy losers on the road and only two of them, New York and Boston, have managed to do better than break even on the home grounds.

New York is the only eastern club which has a look in as far as victories are concerned at home or abroad.

Here is the record of the clubs at home and abroad upto a recent date.

George "Lefty" Tyler of the Cubs, who has been out of the game most of the time this season, is still on the hospital list. An ailment responsible for soreness in his pitching arm has been described variously as rheumatism, neuritis, and several other things by a corps of physicians who have looked him over. His case is in many respects similar to that of Ferdie Schupp's, and he is now at Hot Springs, Ark., trying to boil out the soreness of his salary whip. Tyler, who first gained fame when he, with Dick Rudolph and Bill James, pitched the Braves to the world's championship in 1914 was a consistent winner with the Cubs last year, and is sadly missed by the champions just now.

The Secret of a Superlative Tire

The whole question of a super-tire is a matter of principles. For there is nothing exclusive in the industry. No patents, no secret formulas prevent a conscientious maker from building the best.

But cost and competition modify ideals. The Brunswick idea is to pay perfection's price and get it.

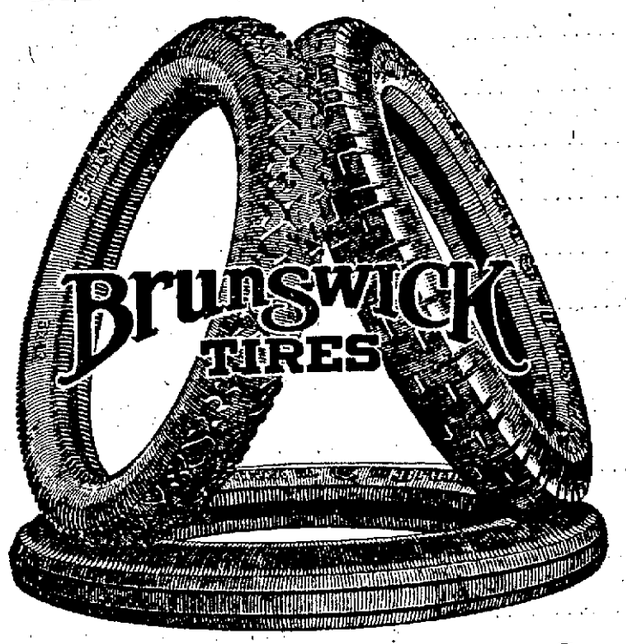

That has been the Brunswick policy since 1845. And it accounts for the growing preference for Brunswick Tires. Motorists expect the utmost from a tire bearing the name of Brunswick—and get it.

You, too, will be convinced by your first Brunswick, that here is an extraordinary tire, and that more money cannot buy a better.

Better tires of their type are impossible—or better tubes. That we guarantee.

Try ONE Brunswick—learn how it excels.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION.

Office of the County Clerk, Aug. 20, 1919.

To the Electors of Rock County:

Notice is hereby given that a special election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages, and election precincts in the county of Rock, on the 2nd day of September, 1919.

Information to Voters.

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

If a voter wishes to vote on the question he shall make a cross or other mark in the circle made for that purpose. If he wishes to vote for the question make an X opposite Yes. If he wishes to vote against the question make an X opposite No.

A ballot so marked shall be counted.

The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist the voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside can not be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion, as to such person's disability.

The following is a fac-simile of the official ballot:

SAMPLE.

Official Referendum Ballot.

If you desire to vote for the question make a cross (X) or other mark in the square after the word "yes"; if you desire to vote against the question make a cross(X) or other mark in the square after the word "no".

Shall there be levied in the year 1919, a mill tax of not to exceed three mills on the dollar and an income tax sufficient to raise an aggregate sum of approximately fifteen million dollars to be paid by the state to Wisconsin soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses as stated in chapter 667 of the laws of 1919?

The Daily Gazette Announces That Commencing Monday, Sept. 1st it Will Begin Publication of a Series of Daily Articles Two for Each Day of Each Week Entitled

All For Boys and Girls

There will be stories and interesting information that will appeal to every school girl and boy.

Each of the twelve series will be illustrated and placed in the paper in such a way as to enable the boys and girls to find the articles without any tiresome searching.

The articles will be about 300 words long and both articles and illustrations will be set so that they will stimulate thought and afford a basis for further discussion.

As far as possible each article will be published during the particular week when it can be read and used to the best advantage.

The various stories will appeal at different times to boys and girls of all ages.

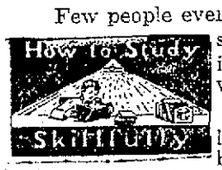

The articles will be for the boys and girls, themselveslves, to read.

They are designed to enable the children to keep up interest in current events.

Below is Published a Brief Synopsis of the Articles:

Parents and teachers are invited to read this synopsis and the Gazette feels that after so doing they will be glad to urge the children to read and study the articles as they are printed.

HOW TO STUDY SKILLFULLY

Few people ever learn how to study. Teachers themselves find it such a difficult problem, that it is no wonder the children have trouble with it.

There is plenty of theoretical, psychological, "how to study" literature, written by one professor for another. There is a very little that is really practical.

PUZZLING EVERY-DAY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

This series will be simply a serial handbook, answering the common every-day questions that puzzle and hinder the youthful student. Typical subjects will be: How to use a library, dictionary, encyclopedia, or maps; how to keep a notebook; how to review; how most efficiently to study lessons in history, geography, spelling, literature and other branches.

PREPARED BY FRANCIS W. PARKER SCHOOL

More different persons will contribute to this series than to any other of the twelve, for it is being prepared as a cooperative proposition by the faculty of the Francis W. Parker School of Chicago, different teachers writing on the subjects in which they have specialized.

The Francis W. Parker School is an experimental school, known over the whole nation as a leader, and ranked by many as the finest private elementary school of the Middle West. Teachers in all states read the annual Francis W. Parker bulletin. Among the many specialists on the faculty are such widely known educators as Miss Flora J. Cooke, Principal, author of "Nature Myths," and Miss Jennie Hall, author of "Viking Tales," "Men of Old Greece," and the "Story of Chicago."

At a meeting of the faculty where it was voted to undertake the writing of this series, Miss Cooke said, "Even from a selfish standpoint, I think it would be a good thing for us to do it. We teachers ought to think more about how to study."

NATURE STUDY.

Science is only advanced nature study. Therefore, in this age of science, the study of nature by children is of vital importance. Often, though, it is slurred over. Teachers, who are often anything but naturalists, try to teach it without textbooks.

FOR BOYS TO MAKE

The day when the first course in manual training was started ought to be a red letter day in the history of every school. Today the standing of a school may be judged by the facilities which ith as for teaching manual arts.

SERIAL TEXTBOOK OF NATURE STUDY

In contracting for the privilege of publishing these articles, Mr. C. H. Dennis, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, asked, "They won't tell about giraffes, elephants, and other African animals, will they?" The answer was, "No, sir; they will tell about the birds, animals, and trees that the boys and girls can actually see about them. The idea is to publish a serial nature study textbook, made up of articles appearing at just the season when the children can verify them and enlarge on them by outdoor observation." For instance, the five articles scheduled for the five Mondays of December are "Jim Crow", "Fishing Animals", "Why Does the Woodpecker Peck"? "The Birds' Christmas Tree", and "Footprints in the Snow".

AUTHOR IS NOTED NATURALIST

Miss Adelia Belle Beard, of the famous Beard family of naturalists, will both write and illustrate this series. Miss Beard is inventor of the "Beard Look-Alive Animals and Birds", and joint author of such widely known books, as "On the Trail", "Mother Nature's Toy Shop", "What a Girl Can Make and Do", and "The American Girls' Handbook". Her noted brother, Dan Beard, is much interested in this work, and has offered his advice and suggestions in developing the series.

ENCOURAGE HOME WORKSHOPS

Every manual training teacher knows that the boy who does the best work in the school shops is the one who has, and uses, a workshop of his own at home. This series is no attempt to outline a manual training course. Its purpose is to stimulate home work and thus develop the boy's skill in handicraft.

There will be brand new ideas about toys, games, weapons, furniture, equipment and other paraphernalia that a twelve-year-old boy will make without being urged on by either teacher or parent.

There is no intention of giving instructions as inflexible as the Infantry Drill Regulations. Illustrations and articles will be suggestive, leaving plenty of leeway for the boy to think out and work out things for himself.

GRANT M. HYDE IS AUTHOR

Mr. Grant M. Hyde, Associate Professor of Journalism in the University of Wisconsin, will collect and edit the articles for this series. Mr. Hyde is a young man who has always taken a great interest in this line of work. In fact his combined talents in mechanics and journalism made him the first managing editor of the "Popular Science Monthly."

FOR GIRLS TO MAKE

In the same way that the series for boys wil supplement the work of the manual training shop, the series, "For Girls to Make," will supplement the school work in domestic and household arts.

NOVEL ATTRACTIONS IDEAS

What girl does not "love" to work out novel ideas for properly celebrating Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving, Christmas or Valentine Day? What girl does not delight to make dainty, attractive things for her own room, or for birthday favors for her friends? All such work done in the home makes her just that much more skillful in the similar work that is done today in the most progressive schools.

SPECIALISTS WILL CONTRIBUTE

Articles for this series are being collected by the editors of the Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service from a number of ladies who have specialized in the line. Many are being furnished by Miss Eleanor S. Moore, instructor in occupational art in the Illinois State Hospital at Elgin. Others will come from persons of similar talent and experience.

ADVENTURES THAT MADE AN AMERICAN

An Iowa superintendent of schools states that in his county more than half of the students who take the high school entrance examinations fail in civics. Unfortunately this condition is prevalent elsewhere. Civics, the study of citizenship ought to be one of the most intensely interesting of all subjects, but it is not. The average teacher racks her brain in vain for ways to arouse their latent interest.

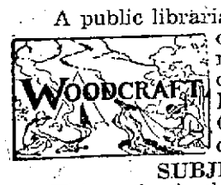

CITIZENSHIP TAUGHT BY ADVENTURES

Here will be something far different than a recitation of the powers of Congress. Hunting Eye, an Indian boy from the West, starts eastward to seek the League of Nations. In the course of his wanderings he learns by a series of adventures the things that every young American should know. Will not a child learn more from the adventure of a boy who is arrested and tried in a real court than from any essay on court procedure stating the same facts?

To stimulate discussion and thought about the institutions that Hunting Eye finds, questions will from time to time be published at the end of the articles. By asking similar questions of her own, a teacher can use the articles as supplementary material in her school room.

WOODCRAFT

A public librarian in Marion, Ohio, testifies that there is only one kind of book, (see series 10) more sought by boys than books on woodcraft. The tremendous popularity of the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Campfire Girls and the Girl Pioneers of America is due to the fascination of camp and trail.

SUBJECTS ARE SEASONABLE

This series is closely allied to "Nature Study." Both can be used to assist in teaching nature in the schools. The policy and method of preparing the two series are the same. (See series 2.) The December topic, "The Best Wood for Hockey Stick," "Running Water," "Winter Tree Buds," "Christmas Trees and Natural Ornaments," and "Snow Storm and Blizzard," give an idea of the type of subjects to be discussed.

Miss Adelia Belle Beard will write and illustrate this series also. Miss Beard is national secretary of the Girl Pioneers of America, a distinctly American organization founded by her sister, Miss Lina Beard. Woodcraft plays an important part in the work of the Girl Pioneers.

SPORTS FOR BOYS

When great athletic directors like Stagg and Jones write, telling how to play football, basketball and baseball, no argument is needed to prove that the boys will read. Such articles are a powerful influence toward clean, efficient school sports.

But some one asks, of what use are they in the classroom? Just this. A boy who reads his newspaper for them is likely to read in the same paper many other good things, too. It is the psychology of the man who sees a necktie in the window, and then goes in and buys a shirt and suit of clothes as well.

Subjects, like those in this series, are the finest kind of composition topics for red-blooded boys. On Thursday, November 13, will appear the announcement that on next Thursday, Nov. 20th, Mr. Jones will write on "The Forward Pass." come to getting an article that is as good as Mr. Jones'."

JUST WHAT BOYS WANT.

Each article will give definite, authoritative information concerning some play, formation, position, or other topic related to football, track, basketball, baseball or other sport. It will be just such information as the candidates for university teams receive. Is there any boy that will not want to read Mr. Stagg's concluding football article, "Generalship," or such a series as "Fundamentals of Pitching," "Fundamentals of Batting", "Handling the Ball," "Running Bases", "Outfield Play", "Infield Play", and "Behind the Bat", the articles scheduled for next March and April?

These articles appear on Thursday so that they will be on hand fresh and ready for Friday, the big day in school sports.

STACY AND JONES CONTRIBUTING

Football articles are written, part by Mr. A. A. Stagg, Athletic Director of the University of Chicago, and part by Mr. T. E. Jones, Athletic Director of the University of Wisconsin. Both men are recognized anywhere in the United States as undisputed authorities on the game. Basketball, baseball and other sports will be handled by men of the same calibre.

THE ALL AROUND AMERICAN GIRL

Boys no longer have a monopoly on out-door sports. Today the typical all around American girl is an outdoor girl.

In the past healthy sports and athletics for and for this reason they are all the more needed now. This series is up-to-date to the very minute.

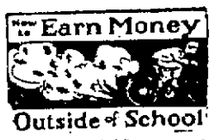

ALL SORTS OF HEALTHY FUN

There are two kinds of exercises: (1) that which is taken out of a sense of duty; (2) that which is taken because it is fun. The second kind is ten times more valuable than the first. It is the kind that this series will encourage. Look at some of the subjects that are comnig: "Field Hockey", "Hare and Hound Hike", "Hallowe'en Revels", "A Thanksgiving Frolic", "Christmas Games", "Stunts on Skates", "A Coasting Party", "A Bob Sled Ride", "Tether Ball and Bat Ball", "Swimming", and "Canoeing".

LOUISE FREER OF ILLINOIS WRITING

Miss Louise Freer, Director of Physical Training for Women in the University of Illinois, has charge of this series. Miss Freer is recognized throughout the Middle West as a leader in her line. Just prior to taking up the work of preparing this series, Miss Freer spent a summer in advanced study of the work in Columbia University, New York.

HOW TO EARN MONEY OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL

If a child is poor and has to earn money, the surest way to keep him from dropping out of school is to assist and encourage him to make money outside of school hours. Just how to do this is a mighty big problem in many families.

Teachers can help stimulate thought on the subject through the English classes. At the request of the Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service, the subject was assigned to a Freshman rhetoric class in the College of Wooster, Ohio, and twenty-six different ideas were secured.

IDEAS THAT HAVE BEEN WORKED

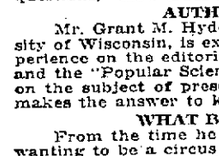

Not ways that money might be made, but ways that it actually has been made, will be given. New ideas, original ideas, are being sought from students in such universities as Illinois, Chicago and Wisconsin, on the theory that the best persons to furnish such ideas are energetic young people who actually made money during their grammar and high school days. Articles in this series will have the interest that always attaches to stories of personal achievement.

AUTHOR DID IT

This series will be prepared personally by Mr. J. H. Millar, Director of the Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service. Mr. Millar writes with the experience of one who has tried it for himself. Starting in with a bank account of $12.00 at the age of nine years, he had saved $1100.00 by the time he entered college. When he graduatd four years later, he had $1600.

Miss Jess T. Robertson, Instructor in Journalism in the Jefferson Vocational High School of Los Angeles, is contributing ideas successfully worked by the boys and girls of the far West.

EVERY DAY SCIENCE AND HOME MECHANICS

There is good reason to believe that there are more boys intensely interested in popular science and popular mechanics than in any other one subject. Any one who doubts this should take a look at the thumb-worn magazines in a library.

SCIENCE BROUGHT DOWN TO GROUND

Articles in this series can be used in classes in general science or physics to show that those subjects are intimately connected with every day life. If a textbook discussion of fuses seems hard to understand, it will be made much clearer by the simple, non-technical article, "Why Does Mother's Electric Iron Blow Outt he Fuse?" Answers will be given to similar common questions about machines, inventions, and apparatus that is seen every day. Teachers ought to welcome it. Nine out of ten could not answer the questions, "How Does Air Stop a Train"?

AUTHOR FORMER SCIENCE EDITOR

Mr. Grant M. Hyde, Associate Profesor of Journalism of The University of Wisconsin, is extremely well qualified to write this series. His experience on the editorial staff of both the "Popular Mechanics Magazine" and the "Popular Science Monthly", enables him to speak with authority on the subject of present day science. His clear, direct, attractive style makes the answer to knotty questions seem easy.

WHAT BOYS CAN BE

From the time he gets past the first stage of wanting to be a circus performer or a goat farmer, until often the early twenties, every boy must face the big questions, "What Shall I Be"?

In spite of the fact that vocational guidance and training is probably receiving more attention than any other line of modern progressive development in education, it is surprising how little the average boy has to read on the subject. Vocational

WHAT GIRLS CAN BE

Perhaps even more interesting is the subject of vocations open to gilrs today. The ordinary girl thinks there are three: teaching, stenography and marriage. It is refreshing indeed to know that in this series the total will be numbered by dozens or scores, instead of counted on the fingers of one hand.

These articles will be a veritable mine of material for further investigation and discussion, because like the boys' articles, they will tell where the interested girl can go to find out more.

"WHERE CAN I LEARN MORE?"

Vocations that are newer, that are less written about, or that offer unusual opportunities at present time will be discussed in this series, a new one each week. Among those scheduled are: "Aeronautical Engineer", "Advertising Specialist", "Production Engineer", "Cost Accountant", "Exporter", "Employment Manager", and "Hotel Manager".

Concerning each vocation the following information will be given: (1) natural qualifications needed; (2) opportunities of the work; (3) preliminary training necessary; (4) how to start; (5) where to get more information.
